SPENDING TO INCREASE, IKE SAYS

Missile Nose Cone Recovery Amazing Feat

WASHINGTON (UP) — Informed sources said today there can be no doubt the nose cone of the missile shown the nation by President Eisenhower on TV last week really reentered earth's atmosphere and did almost everything but dance a hornpipe.

These sources said a report on the nose cone by three defense officials in Cincinnati, Ohio, Wednesday could be accepted as authoritative. They pointed out that one of the officials, Alvin G. Waggoner, is one of the top advisers to William M. Holaday, the Defense Department's missile chief.

Waggoner and two other military officials explained the nose cone had to "think for itself and determine at least a dozen acts."

Lists Functions

These included launching a parachute at the right time to slow itself down, tossing out a balloon and inflating it; ejecting and exploding bombs; turning itself into a radio broadcasting station; lighting a flashing beacon; marking its landing spot in the Atlantic; and spreading shark repellent so Navy divers could retrieve it.

But observers said the fact that the nose cone, part of an Army Jupiter-C ballistic missile, soared into space and returned to earth did not mean it had solved the reentry problem for all other rockets. It has not been officially divulged whether intermediate and intercontinental ballistic missiles have solved the reentry problem—one of resisting the intense heat generated when an object encounters the earth's atmosphere.

It is not known whether Russia has solved this problem.

Ike Showed Cone

The President, in his first "chins up" speech to the nation, said only that the government had solved the missile reentry problem and the nose cone perched beside him had been "hundreds of miles to outer space and back." The military officials gave the first details of the flight of the Jupiter-C.

Army Col. John H. Swenson, an assistant for research and development, said when the Jupiter-C reached the top of its flight the rocket motors were blasted from the cone

In its plunge to earth, he said, the cone first began to glow with the "same intensity as a second class star. It was visible to the eye, like any other meteor."

Then the parachute flipped out. Computing a rush of factors automatically, the cone then expelled a balloon and inflated it.

"Then a little guillotine severed the inflating tube and the balloon was let out on a tether above the parachute," Swenson said.

"Just before it hit the water it ejected and fired some small bombs so the Navy could pick up the noise on listening devices and know the point of the crash."

Swenson said the function of the Navy units in the descent was

Dumbauld Named To Bench in Fayette County

Dr. Edward Dumbauld, 52, of 44 S. Mt. Vernon Ave., Uniontown, was appointed to the Fayette County Court bench today by Gov. George M. Leader.

Dumbauld will serve until January, 1960. His appointment fills the vacancy created by the recent death of Common Pleas Judge S. John Morrow.

The new jurist is the son of the late Judge Horatio S. Dumbauld, who served the Fayette County Court of Common Pleas from 1936 through 1946.

He is a graduate of Princeton University and the Harvard Law School with the class of 1929. He was admitted to the practice of law in the same year.

Since then, Dumbauld has also practiced before the state Superior and Supreme Courts and the U. S. Supreme Court.

He has written five books and 45 articles on legal and historical subjects. His latest book, entitled "Bill of Rights and What It Means Today" was published this year.

A past president of the Fayette County Bar Association, he also served as special assistant to former U. S. Attorney General Thomas Clark.

Active in civic and church affairs in Uniontown, Dumbauld served as Fayette County Democratic party chairman from 1934 to 1936 and acted as a delegate to the Democratic national convention in 1936.

Dr. Daumbauld, defeated in last May's Democratic primary for a judicial nomination, was among seven candidates for the appointment.

Six Boys Take Short Fling at Morganza School

CANONSBURG, Pa (UP)—Six Philadelphia boys were back at the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza today after fleeing the institution for a "night on the town."

One of the youths changed his mind and returned to the correctional institution shortly after the break Wednesday night.

The others came into Canonsburg to "have some fun" and returned to the school early today. Two were found on the school grounds and three were found asleep on a porch of one of the cottages.

Asst. Supt. John Williams said it was believed at first the boys fled because they thought they would not receive furloughs to go home for Christmas. He said that actually the committee which decides on furloughs has not yet met.

Williams declined to identify the boys. all of them under 16.

Marianna Pit Was 'Unsafe'

BROWNSVILLE, Pa. (UP) — A four-man state coal mine inspection team revealed today that the Bethlehem Steel Corp. mine at nearby Marianna was declared "unsafe" a day before an explosion claimed the lives of six miners.

Five other miners were injured in the blast that ripped through the Washington County soft coal pit 500 feet below the surface last Sept. 23.

The critical report was disclosed by mine inspectors A. J. Nairn, J.M. Black, C.A. Lozaw and L.D. Kimmel prior to submitting it to Joseph T. Kennedy, secretary of the state Department of Mines at Harrisburg.

The investigators reached the following conclusions:

—The ventilation of the mine was seriously interrupted by the Piper Ventilating fan being shut down.

—That a survey of air made by four assistant mine foremen on Sept. 22 "indicated the mine was in an unsafe condition."

—A report of this survey was made verbally and in writing to the superintendent, assistant superintendent and the mine foreman.

—That neither the superintendent nor mine foreman took appropriate action to protect life and property at the mine.

The dead and injured miners had gone into the pit in the morning to check the faulty fan. Officials had closed the mine because of the fan and ordered the 200 miners who usually work the shift not to report.

Killed by the blast were Joseph Smith, Stanley Collins, George Demko, Phil Korney, George Marmuth and James Wright.

Willie Mays Is Turned Down in House Buying

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Willie Mays, sensational centerfielder for the San Francisco Giants, has been turned down in his attempt to buy a house in San Francisco because he is a Negro.

Mays, 27, offered the asking price of $37,500 for a three-bedroom house on Miraloma Drive in a section adjoining the exclusive St. Francis Wood area.

The owner thought the offer over for several days and rejected it. He said neighbors in the area objected to the Mays.

"I'd sure like to live in San Francisco, but I don't want to make an issue of it," said Mays. "I've never been through this kind of thing before and I'm not even mad about it now."

Mays now owns a home in Washington Heights in upper Manhattan. He said if he cannot buy here, he will keep the New York house and come out here only for the baseball season.

Mrs. Mays, who has a daughter by a previous marriage, appeared more resentful.

"Down in Alabama, where we come from, you know your place," she said. "But up here it's all a lot of camouflage. They grin in your face and then deceive you."

Annexation Survey in Field Made Yesterday

Two investigators for the state Council of Education yesterday looked into the lengthy dispute between the Monessen and Rostraver school districts which involves about 75 pupils in the Park Plan area of the city.

Dr. Edward Rumpf and Dr. Robert Mellman, of the state Department of Instruction, conferred with both Monessen and Rostraver school officials on the matter. They promised to report their findings to the state Council by next Wednesday.

Involved in the controversy is a 199 acre tract of land annexed by the city in 1955, but which remained under the jurisdiction of the Rostraver school district for educational purposes.

Since then, a group of Monessen citizens has repeatedly petitioned the Council to give the annexed area to the city school district.

At a meeting on Sept. 18, the Council decided to withhold action on the latest petition, pending a field investigation.

The two investigators spent yesterday morning in the office of Monessen Superintendent of Schools Dr. Joseph Pallone. In the afternoon, they conferred with Rostraver Superintendent E. F. Carter.

They checked closely the financial records of both school districts as well as facilities and curriculum. Rostraver has successfully blocked attempts to strip away the disputed area by claiming such a separation would create a financial hardship.

The state Council has promised to render a decision in the case by Jan. 1, 1958.

Bosson Zelenski Williams Guttman

Michigan Governor Says U.S. Had Better 'Get on the Ball'

"The recent Soviet satellite launching means that the Soviet industry has reached a stage where it rivals the U. S. If the future belongs to the nation with the strongest industrial potential, we had better get on the ball," Gov. G. Mennen Williams, Michigan, said last night.

Speaking at the 37th annual Charleroi Chamber of Commerce banquet at Twin Coaches, Williams said the great advances made by the Russians in technology and science mean "the Soviets now are no poor relations."

Talking of the Russians' gains in the fields of science and education, the Princeton University graduate said the American heritage faces the possibility of extinction if the United States does not utilize its potential.

"Unless America mobilizes all of its physical and spiritual resources, our way of life is threatened with extinction and our period of greatness and freedom is at an end." he said.

The five-term Midwest governor said the "American nation has never been known to shrink from bold decisions...when Americans were convinced their future was at stake." But he warned we "will not have much time to make up our minds."

"In nuclear war, you can not mobilize after the war starts." the tall 46-year old Democrat stated.

"I would say that Sputnik means that the Soviet technology and science is reaching or has reached a position where it does not have to take a back seat to anyone."

More Graduates

He said nothing short of a "revolutionary approach" to American's education can seriously challenge Russia's Sputniks. He said the Soviets were turning out more secondary graduates, engineers and scientists than the United States.

The American people, the governor said, will have to face up to the need for federal aid to education in the form of school construction subsidies and scholarships to enable the U. S. to keep abreast of the Russians in the fields of science and engineering.

Williams, who is being boomed as possible Democratic presidential timber, took time out in his lengthy address to state that "recent surveys of the President's

Settlement Is Reached by Harris Couple

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UP)—Entertainment magnate John W. Harris 57, of Pittsburgh and his skating star wife, Donna Atwood, 32, have reached a temporary property settlement compromise pending their divorce.

The principals and their attorneys huddled in the chambers of Superior Court Judge Orlando H. Rhodes for two hours Wednesday, awaiting the clearing of a crowded court calendar, and then announced the agreement.

Mrs. Harris and their three children will continue to occupy the $400,000 family home in Beverly Hills, Calif. Harris, owner of the Ice Capades, will continue to pay her $2,000 monthly. He also will make all other payments he said he would make under an agreement signed Aug. 13.

Mrs. Harris agreed the validity of the property settlement should be decided at the same time the court hears charges in her second amended complaint for divorce. She had come to court prepared to attack the agreement as obtained through duress.

Harris was seeking an order declaring the Aug. 13 contract binding on his wife and asking that her petition for $6,000 monthly temporary alimony and child support be dismissed.

Judge Rhodes advised the couple's attorneys to seek an early date for the divorce trial hearing.

In her suit, Mrs. Pro, who is employed at the Corning Glass Works, charged that she was injured on the Eighth St. crossing in Charleroi on Feb. 19, 1954, while walking to work.

Mrs. Pro said her foot became lodged in a hole at the crossing and she fell, sustaining injuries.

President Makes No Mention of Any Tax Boost

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP) — President Eisenhower put America on notice today to prepare for considerably higher federal spending if this country is to keep abreast of the space age—and Russia.

Whether the substantially higher price tag on national security would mean higher taxes was the billion dollar question before the nation.

The President, in his nationally broadcast and televised speech Wednesday night in the Municipal Auditorium here, did not once mention the possibility of higher taxes. But at seven different points in his speech he stressed that substantial additional costs would be involved in bringing America's arsenal up to scientific date with Russia, raising military pay, increasing the educational production of scientists and keeping foreign aid at about its present levels.

Immediately after his speech in the auditorium to an audience of more than 6,000 persons, the President raced back to Washington during the night by air to preside this morning at his second meeting of the National Security Council this week.

Pledged Economy

The President, while forecasting markedly higher spending for defense in his Oklahoma City speech, pledged his administration to every possible economy in current federal costs in areas less important than security and scientific achievement.

He said, however, that he had come to the "clear conclusion" that some civilian programs of the government, "while desirable, are not absolutely essential" and probably would have to go, under the weight of satellites, missiles, dispersing the Strategic Air Command to additional bases and other mounting security costs.

The President refrained from telling Congress where to cut domestically, but he was specific on where cuts should not be made.

He said the answer to economies needed to meet mounting defense demands did not lie in cutting his mutual security program of economic and military foreign aid.

Against Cost Cuts

Eisenhower said it also would be a mistake to cut costs by "any misguided attempt" to eliminate conventional military forces and "rely solely on retaliation."

"This course would be completely self-defeating," he said.

The Chief Executive expressed the hope that Russia ultimately would cooperate with the West in seeking "peace with justice." Until there is concrete evidence of such cooperation and a cessation of threats from the Communist orbit, he said this country would have to maintain a mighty nuclear retaliatory power "as a primary deterrent to war."

The President announced a four-part plan for increasing the retaliatory power of the Strategic Air Command:

—A speedup in dispersal of SAC to other bases.

—A speedup in improving warning systems protecting the nation, because "with missiles and faster bombers, warning times will grow shorter."

—Development of an active missile defense against missiles

Jury Selection Is Started in Murder Case

Selection of a jury started yesterday in Washington County Court in the murder case involving three Canonsburg youths.

The defendants are James Glenn Alfold, George Pollard and Ronald Burgess. They are charged with beating aged Austin Wallace of McDonald last May 13. Wallace died in Washington Hospital two months later of head injuries.

The state will charge that Wallace was beaten in the process of a robbery or burglary attempt on his home. It is expected that the state will seek a first degree verdict with the penalty fixed at life imprisonment.

Judge David H. Weiner is sitting in the case. Selection of jurors started in the afternoon yesterday, and of nine jurors called two were selected for duty. They are Myra Marzolf, Washington, and Antoinette DeAmbrogi, Charleroi. It is expected that 12 jurors and two alternates will be selected in this second case.

The three defendants are represented by court-appointed counsel, Samuel L. Rodgers, Robert L. Ceisler and Richard DiSalle. Assistant District Attorney Thomas J. Terputac will try the case for the commonwealth.

During yesterday's selection of jurors, the defense asked questions about personal prejudices. The three defendants are Negroes.

Elks Take Steps to Build Swimming Pool

Construction of a $75,000 swimming pool is the next step in the development of the new Monessen Elks Park, it was announced today by Exalted Ruler Lee Jones.

According to Jones, the Elks are considering three methods of financing the project. He said questionnaires have been mailed to all members in an effort to sound out their thinking on the matter.

Jones also disclosed that the project will be discussed during a regular meeting of B.P.O. Elks 773, tonight.

The new Elks Park is located off of State Rd. At present, bulldozers and heavy equipment are working daily, preparing the park for many contemplated improvements.

Jones pointed out that the Park Development Committee hopes that normal profits from the swimming pool will help to finance many other improvements. That is why the pool is being placed first on the development program.

Members of the Elks will be asked to consider three possible methods of financing the project.

The first suggestion embodies an insurance plan which makes available $250 worth of life insurance for every $100 donation.

The second plan calls for subscription loans of $100 which will be repaid in five years and for which a one-year family pass to the swimming pool will be issued for each $100 loaned.

The third method is a request for outright gifts which will entitle

Williams — with a big helping hand from Liberace and his floor show — attracted a record crowd estimated at 1,000.

Awards Presented

Prior to Williams' talk, Alex Zelenski, president of the Charleroi Chamber, presented two two awards. One went to the Charleroi plant of Corning Glass Co. for its economic contribution to the community and the other to the Charleroi School District for its educational, athletic and musical contributions.

In accepting the award for Corning Glass, Amory Houghton Jr., vice president, said the outlook for the glass industry "is brighter than it has been for years," despite a mild recession in other businesses. H. Marvin Hosier, Monessen, plant manager, also was introduced.

Theodore Breuer, president, and D. L. Glunt, superintendent, accepted the award for the School District.

Following the opening remarks by David S. Bosson, Chamber executive manager, the Rev. Robert Lang, First Methodist Church, Charleroi, gave the invocation. Benediction was by the Rev. John J. Thomas, Mother of Sorrows R. C. Church, Charleroi.

Rege Cordic, Pittsburgh radio performer, was toastmaster. Leo Guttman, who delivered the welcome address, was general chairman of the affair.

Judge Weiss Fines Three, Acquits One

Judge David H. Weiss yesterday fined three persons and acquitted one in trial sessions in Westmoreland County Common Pleas Court.

Acquitted was Rudolph Forty, 35, of 426 Third St., Monessen, who had been charged with violating the motor vehicle code. Forty was ordered to pay the costs.

In another case, William Peters, Smithton, charged with failure to stop after an accident with a car driven by Edwin Cmar, Monessen, was fined $50 and costs by Judge Weiss.

The local jurist fined John Hnatko, Monessen, $100 each on two charges of lottery to which Knatko pleaded guilty. The offenses occurred in Monessen July 25, according to the prosecutors, Monessen Police Lt. James Horan and Patrolman Joseph Reday.

The court prohibited George T. DeValerio, 18, Bradenville, from hunting game in Pennsylvania. DeValerio pleaded guilty to shooting and wounding a human being in a mistake for game.

In addition, DeValerio was sentenced to pay a fine of $200 and placed under a suspended sentence for three years, if he pays the fine. Otherwise, he is to serve a year in the county jail.

DeValerio was charged by George T. Church, Jr. district game protector, with wounding Glenn B. Gess in Derry Township last July 9. Gess subsequently recovered.

The court directed that the $200 fine imposed on DeValerio be paid to Gess to aid in taking care of his medical expenses.

Pineau to Fly To Washington

PARIS (UP)—Foreign Minister Christian Pineau said today he would fly to Washington Friday to try to straighten out a crisis in Franco-American relations over U.S. arms to Tunisia.

Pineau warned that the supply of American arms to the one-time French Protectorate would amount to a breach of Atlantic solidarity.

His statement underlined the gravity of a situation which sent U.S. Ambassador Amory Houghton calling on Premier Felix Gaillard at 2 a.m. today and again at 7 a.m.

Pineau told the National Assembly Foreign Affairs Committee the French government formally requested the United States and Britain not to give arms to Tunisia.

The President said his scientists advised him "above all immediate tasks" is increasing the production of scientists. The problem will be in its most critical phase for the next 10 years, he said.

He said the federal government cannot take on the full load of stepping up education of scientists and engineers, but must cooperate with state and local governments.

The President discounted Soviet claims of an accurate intercontinental ballistics missile. He said it will be "some time" before either the United States or Russia has a long-range missile to equal "even a small fraction of the total destructive power of our present bomber force."

County Airline Service Sought for Latrobe

WASHINGTON (UP)—Commercial air service for the Latrobe, Pa., area was requested Wednesday at a hearing called to determine whether Pennsylvania and other northeastern states should get improved air service.

The request was made to a Civil Aeronautics Board examiner by the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission.

It advised examiner John Cannon that Latrobe Airport is being expanded to accommodate commercial traffic.

James H. Underwood, chairman of the Municipal Airport Authority of Westmoreland County, Pa., said in prepared testimony that Latrobe, Greensburg and Jeannette should get air service by next year.

"It is my feeling that Westmoreland County is among the most wealthy areas in the United States and may even be the wealthiest county in the United States without commercial airline service," he said.

The statement said executives of steel plants in the Latrobe area now must drive as much as 70 miles to make flights in Pittsburgh.

It added that the long automobile trip has discouraged executives from traveling by air.

Nevertheless, it said, more than 4,000 commercial airline tickets were sold by travel agencies in Latrobe and Greensburg in the first nine months of 1957.

Airline petitions for authority to provide service in the area will be considered Dec. 2, but no airline has yet asked specifically to service Latrobe, a CAB spokesman said.

City Firemen, Police Ask Council for Pay Boost

Hourly Workers Want Meeting To Discuss Pay

Monessen City Council yesterday was asked to consider pay raises for firemen, police and hourly employes.

In a joint letter, the firemen and police asked that their request be considered when Council prepares next year's budget. They specified no amount. The request was filed for future reference.

The hourly employes, members of Local 779, United Municipal Workers of America, asked for a meeting with Council to discuss pay increases. The meeting has been set for Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the City Building.

The City will purchase a new police car from the John L. Gibson garage, which submitted the low bid of $1,950 plus the trade-in value of a used cruiser.

Council decided on a new car because of the mounting repairs on the present cars, which, Councilman John Kotch, said "are in operation nearly 24 hours a day and really take a beating. Our repairs are running into money and also take a good deal of our mechanics' time."

To Install Hydrant

A fire hydrant will be installed near Balazia Ave. and Ridge Rd. This hydrant will also provide service for Joan Rd. residents, who had petitioned Council for fire protection.

Dr. Joseph Pallone, superintendent of local public schools, was recommended to replace Dr. Michael Duda, former superintendent, as a member of the Civil Service Board. The board is scheduled to set up an examination schedule for police aspirants.

Despite comments that there are "dark spots" on Donner Ave. since the installation of the new lighting system, West Penn Power Co. officials informed Council that a recent candlepower test showed "illumination is even." The company added that the lights still are being adjusted and tested.

Mrs. Lottie H. Buck, 948 Athalia Ave., Monessen, through her attorney, Peter Demas, claimed negligence on the City's part when she was allegedly injured in a fall on Sixth St. last month.

The matter was referred to the City legal department.

Four Students Exempt from English Course

Four district Pennsylvania State University students have been exempted from the basic course in English composition.

The exempted students, all freshmen or in several cases students who transferred to Penn State with advanced standing, are enrolled on the campus here or at one of the Penn State centers throughout the state.

The following were exempted:

Donora: Robert L. Kistler, 459 Fifth St., petroleum and natural gas engineering; Arlene H. Tomich, 634 Fifth St., arts and letters and Suzanne H. Wertz, 114 Bertha Ave., appled art.

Finleyville: Barry L. Lively, R. D. 1, pre-medical.

Dr. A. Bruce Sutherland, acting head of the department of English, explains that the exemptions are made on the basis of results from a test given to the new students as a part of their pre-registration testing and counseling. Those qualifying for exemption are permitted to substitute a more advanced course for the basic course.

Dr. Sutherland also pointed out that the exemption for a student reflects credit on the high school where the student was prepared for college as well as on the student himself.

Local Woman At Red Cross Council Meeting

Mrs. Pierce Johnson represented the Monessen-Belle Vernon Chapter at the Red Cross three-state council on services to camps and hospitals held recently in New Castle.

The purpose of the council is to co-ordinate a program of entertainment and recreation for veterans hospitals and military installations in the tri-state area.

As a part of this program, camp and hospital service has provided television sets, sports equipment, and other recreational items for servicemen and hospitalized veterans. The service even supervised the distribution of canaries to veterans' hospitals where they were used for therapeutic purposes.

Plans for special live Christmas entertainment for hospitalized veterans were made at the council meeting, along with arrangements to purchase many gifts items.

George F. Goehring Gets Patent for Display Device

A West Newton man, George F. Goehring, of 702 Main St., has received a U. S. patent for a novel invention he has titled "Animated Display Device."

The invention is designed for display windows in stores. It provides for movements in attention-attracting scenes.

Goehring has devised his animated device that it readily adapts itself for use with a display beneath a Christmas tree or as an advertising display in connection with a show window or counter of a store. In particular, he provides a contrivance wherein a single source of power, such as a small, slow speed electric motor, acts in conjunction with sprocket wheels, chains, levers and other necessary parts to cause different movements.

In his patent specifications, Goehring describes a construction in which his display device comprises a simulated dwelling of the ranch house type with a lawn surrounding it, a fence, a garage and a breezeway between the latter and the house.

Provision is made for a simulated lawn mower with a handle to which the hands of a figure, representing a man, are secured. The legs of the man are arranged so that they may swing forwardly and rearwardly. Included also is a glider that is located in the breezeway, has the figure of a woman seated on it, and is capable of swinging movement.

In other words, when the motor is energized, the lawn mower will travel, and the man connected to it will walk, in an oval path in front of the house and realistically give the impression that the lawn is being cut. At the same time, a reciprocating or swinging movement will be imparted to the glider and the woman seated on it.

The application for this patent was filed on January 18, 1956.

Pastor Speaks At Congregation Dinner Here

The Rev. R. K. Weber, pastor of Harrolds - Zion charge near Greensburg, was the main speaker at a congregational dinner held last Friday evening at Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church.

The dinner was prepared and served by the ladies of the Methodist Church so that all members of the congregation could attend the dinner, which was held in connection with the Sector Plan for Stewardship now being conducted by the church.

The purpose of the plan is to educate members of the congregation in areas of Christian Stewardship and inform them of present and future needs of the church.

Pastor John Schneidmiller led the congregation in the Invocation. A fifteen minute song period followed the meal. Mrs. Eugene Andes was the leader; Miss Gladys Urinsco, the pianist.

Following an opening statement by the pastor, the general chairman, Philip Weise, was introduced. Weise acted as toastmaster for the affair, presenting first a statement of welcome, then a few comments on the Sector Plan.

Committee chairmen who each made brief statements were: George Hamilton, research chairman, "What Kind of a Congregation Are We?"; Gustave Ulander, proposal chairman, "What Does God Expect of Us?"; David Gephart, survey chairman, "Has God Given Us the Potential?"; and Miss Margaret Bierwirth, visits chairman, "We Are Starting, Our Leaders Are Leading." Edward Boes and Wallace Kotouch also spoke briefly.

Two hundred and fifty members of the congregation attended the affair.

Speers Police Chief Tells Story Of How He Lost Gun in Scuffle

Charles A. Hazlett, a former Monessen policeman, was the commonwealth's chief witness yesterday for direct testimony in the Orville Kittle murder case before Washington County Court.

It was Hazlett's gun, a .38 caliber revolver, which the commonwealth contends Kittle used last Aug. 10 to shoot down his nephew George Wayne Lasko in California borough.

Hazlett, who is now Chief of Police in Speers borough, told how Kittle snatched the gun from the officer's holster while Hazlett was busy trying to ease an altercation at the scene.

The witness then described how only a few minutes later, Lasko went down from the fatal shot while standing "about three feet" from Kittle who by this time was in Officer Hazlett's car trying to leave the scene.

According to Hazlett, the shooting climaxed a pushing and shoving match between the defendant and the victim, the latter, Hazlett said, trying to keep Kittle from leaving.

Previously, Hazlett testified that he was investigating the burglary earlier in the day last August of the Hollow Inn in Speers and that the investigation led him to the Steve Barnett home along Route 88 in California. Barnett is a brother-in-law to Kittle.

The Speers officer testified that after the shooting, the California police cruiser arrived at the scene driven by Chief Robert Elliott who fired one shot in the air, got out of the car and used his car as a shield.

At this point, Hazlett went to a nearby inn to seek a gun, he said, and was unable to testify as to how Kittle got possession of the California police car in which he left the scene.

Kittle was apprehended in the police car later the same night at a State Police roadblock.

Judge J. Ingram Hook recessed court overnight at the end of Hazlett's direct examination, and cross-examination of the witness started this morning.

The fourteenth and final juror for the case was selected shortly after the noon recess yesterday after the thirteenth was selected in the morning. The last juror, one of the two alternates, is Mrs. Anne Blacka, of Allenport.

The first 13 jurors in the order chosen are Imogene Thorney, Monongahela; Mary B. Dobbin, Canonsburg; Patricia Johnson, Houston; George Ealy, West Alexander; Helen Natali, Fredericktown; Charles H. Baker, Washington, R.D. 5; Edward McGraw, Washington; Stella Horner, Washington; Delma Latour, Mongaheal, R.D. 2; Mrs. Evelyn Dague, Bentleyville; Willard Hensell, Claysville; Rose M. Duchi, Canonsburg and Rose Supinski, Canonsburg.

Monessen's Master Plan Emerges

THE LONG-range plan for Monessen's future development, on which the Planning Commission has been at work for nearly two years, has now emerged.

As expected, it contains some ambitious, even dramatic, recommendations. It represents a bold look into the future of a large and changing community. It is thinking in terms, not just of 5 or 10 years, but of 50 years.

For this reason, the master plan will seem to some citizens to be a dream-like affair, a pretty picture which would be nice to realize but isn't very likely to be worked out.

But this is the wrong approach. Monessen would be a much better community today, at least from a physical standpoint, had its early citizens tried to plan in terms of 50 years. And our present city officials are absolutely correct in their insistence that, at least in broad outline, they must know that the decisions they make today are leading to the kind of Monessen in which citizens of the next generation will be glad to live in and work.

This is the objective of the master plan.

* * *

THE PLAN itself is a complex, often highly technical, affair. And we will not attempt a detailed exposition of it in this space. Those who have more than ordinary interest are referred to the documents themselves, which are available at the City Hall, the Public and High School libraries and the Chamber of Commerce.

The plan contemplates that Monessen's principal business and industrial districts will be in approximately their present downtown locations. But there would eventually be a dramatic rearrangement of the business district to provide wider streets, adequate parking and more modern shopping facilities.

As for the residential areas, the plan contemplates three large neighborhood districts. Each would be served eventually by its own localized shopping center, the units of which would be restricted in size.

The school system would gradually be shaped to the new plan. A single elementary school would serve each of the three neighborhood districts, and there would be a central junior high and a central senior high.

Other community facilities, including parks, streets, highways and transportation, would conform in general to this outline.

Effective use would be made of steep slope areas which now often are either unkempt eyesores or building sites of dubious value. These areas would be acquired by the city gradually and converted to greenbelts separating the residential areas from industrial and commercial districts.

* * *

THIS is a very sketchy description. But it is enough to support our opinion that, in general, the Planning Commission has produced a master plan which is ambitious but also workable. The possibilities are at once fascinating and challenging.

Obviously, a vast amount of work lies ahead before these visions can begin to become realities. But the end result is certain to be the brighter, better community our people have indicated they want. Let's get on with that great job.

How's That Again?

IT SEEMS incredible that two old word-slingers like Adlai Stevenson and Jim Hagerty should misunderstand each other But evidently that was the cause of the confusion on Tuesday when Mr. Hagerty first announced that Mr. Stevenson would not be a consultant to the White House and State Department on the NATO conference and then corrected the announcement to say that Mr. Stevenson would serve.

Foremost among Mr. Stevenson's accomplishments is a facility with words. However, it became a matter of argument during his presidential campaigns whether Mr. Stevenson's words were not going over the heads of many people.

We should think, though, that it would be hard to put words over Jim Hagerty's head. Before he got to helping governors and presidents with their press relations, he was a newspaper reporter — and a very good one. And it is generally recognized in Washington that he makes few mistakes.

But either Mr. Stevenson wasn't being as clear about this matter as an elocutionist of his stature could be expected to be. Or Mr. Hagerty's usually quick comprehension missed a beat. In either case, the result was a very unhappy setting for an important piece of news.

We'd risk a prediction: If Adlai Stevenson is ever elected President, Jim Hagerty won't be the press secretary. And that would be by mutual agreement.

Adams May Leave Ike's Team Soon

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Don't be surprised if still another member of the famed "Eisenhower team" steps out of harness in the not too distant future. He is "assistant president" Sherman Adams, one of the most powerful men in Washington.

Mr. Pearson

Adams is powerful because of Eisenhower absenteeism and delegation of authority. As a result, relations with Congress, contacts with every agency of government except the State Department operate through Adams.

Every cabinet member except John Foster Dulles is asked to stop in Adams' office after a talk with the President and dictate a memo regarding the points he took up with Ike and what was agreed to. For, in the long run, it's Adams who carries out any commitments made by the President — or in some cases reverses presidential commitments.

The top assistant to any President is important, but never in the years I have covered Washington has any man been given such leeway in the White House as the dry, efficient, square-dancing ex-governor of New Hampshire.

However, Adams is now being made the scapegoat for missile-satellite failures, has rubbed Vice President Nixon the wrong way, and has pulled wires wholesale in the independent agencies. If the Moulder watchdog committee ever gets the files from these commissions, supposed to be quasi-judicial, independent agencies, it will be seen that, instead of answering the will of the people, they have been answering the will of Sherman Adams.

So, along with other members of the palace guard dominating the Washington scene for five years, the tight-lipped, efficient, square-dancing assistant President is expected to leave Washington quietly for the pine-forested hills of New Hampshire. . . .

NOTE — It is rumored around the White House that Alger Chapman, a Dewey partner, will replace Adams. When contacted by this column, Chapman said no one around the White House had talked to him.

White House Secrets

Edward N. Gadsby, the Boston lawyer who now heads the Securities and Exchange Commission, doesn't like to be investigated by Congress. His job is to investigate Wall Street, to see whether it's on the up-and-up. But he just doesn't like having Congress investigate him to see whether his commission's on the up-and-up.

When the Moulder committee tried to ascertain whether SE Commissioners had received any favors from corporations they are supposed to regulate, Chairman Gadsby really reared back on his Back Bay dignity.

Joe Conlon, investigator for the Moulder watchdog committee, had previously asked SE Commissioners for a list of all correspondence between the SEC and the White House and with members of Congress

He was looking, among other things, for the hand that rocks the SEC cradle — Sherman Adams. For in Washington it's said: "The Adams hand that Rocks the cradle is mightier than the Eisenhower hand that wields the sword."

"May I ask you, sir, whether you prepared such a list?" Conlon asked.

"No," shrugged Gadsby.

"Do you intend to prepare such a list?" asked Conlon.

"No," said Gadsby.

Noticing a stenographer busily taking notes, Conlon demanded: "Is there a transcript of this meeting being taken?"

Gadsby replied "No," and the stenographer abruptly stopped writing. "If there is," continued Conlon, "I would like a copy of the remarks made."

"There is no stenographer," repeated the SEC boss.

"Then may we have a stenographer?" suggested Conlon. "I would like a stenographer."

"We don't provide that sort of thing," barked Gadsby.

"With an appropriation of $300,000, I think they can provide their own stenographer," broke in SEC counsel Dan McCauley.

"Perhaps we should adjourn until I can get a stenographer, and we can meet tomorrow," offered Conlon.

"I don't know whether the commission will be willing to meet you tomorrow," snorted Gadsby. "The commission is not going to submit to an inquisition.

Ike Skirts Real Problem

By WALTER LIPPMANN

In his speech last week the President had a long introductory section (over two columns of newspaper print) which was addressed to the irrational fears of the least informed part of our people. This is the notion that with the Sputniks the Russians have achieved a decisive military superiority. To knock over this straw man the President marshalled a long array of facts which show that as of today we have a powerful military establishment.

Mr. Lippmann

Then at least, but with the utmost understatement, he came to the outer edge of the real problem: "I must say to you in all gravity that in spite of the present over-all strength and the forward momentum of our defense, that it is entirely possible that in the years ahead we could fall behind. I repeat: We could fall behind — unless we face up to certain pressing requirements and set out to meet them promptly."

To call this an understatement is iself an understatement. For the indubitable fact is that in the field of the longer range missiles and in the penetration of space, we have fallen behind. The question is not now whether 'we could fall behind." It is when and how we can catch up, and the President will never restore the confidence of the people until he gives them the confidence that he is telling them the full truth.

Listens to Scientists

The speech shows that the President has recently been listening to scientists and educators But the main concern of the authors of the speech was to dampen down and to soothe, rather than to awaken and to arouse, our people. That is why they emphasized the false issue of our present strength and minimized, if not worse, the far-reaching significance of the growing strength of the Soviet Union.

What the Russians are demonstrating is that in the science and the technology which determines the balance of power they have achieved a greater forward momentum than our own. In the race of armaments they have come from behind and are now out in front. This does not mean that they now have a decisive superiority. But it does mean that we are threatened with a growing inferiority, which will be registered and discounted in advance in all the foreign offices of the world.

Estimates differ as to how great is their lead in missiles and devices for outer space. But their lead is, it would appear, a matter of years — perhaps as much as four to six years. This would mean that even with the utmost acceleration that it may be some years before we arrive where they are now. In the meantime most probably they will have moved on.

Something similar, though in reverse, has happened here to what happened to nuclear weapons. There we had a lead of several years, and although the Russians began to catch up with us by 1949, there is a good probability that we are still well ahead of them in quality and in quantity. In these technological matters, it is like running to catch up with and to pass someone who is in the lead and running faster than you are.

This can be done. But it cannot be done by government as usual, by business as usual, and by playing all the usual records about how rich and how free and how invincible and how efficient and how lovable we are. We are in a situation which, for us, is entirely unusual, that we may become, as compared with our rival, the weaker power.

As long as this is the prospect, we shall have to learn how to defend ourselves in the world by a wise diplomacy. We must prepare our minds not so much for what is conceivable but improbable, such as a sudden attack on the Pearl Harbor model. We must prepare for what is most probably coming — that the Soviets will have operational missiles capable of neutralizing the Allied bases in Western Europe and the Middle East.

Policy Outmoded

If this comes to pass, there will cept of our foreign policy-y have been undermined the concept of our foreign policy as conceived under Truman and Acheson and developed by Eisenhower and Dulles. This is the concept of the containment of the Communist states by military encirclement in the hope that this will in the end compel them to accept as the terms of a settlement the equivalent of an unconditional surrender.

We have been taught by the offical propaganda to suspect any terms of settlement in Germany, in the Middle East, and in the Far East which are short of unconditional surrender. This is a great and, it might be, a fatal error.

If we cannot correct it, if we cannot learn to live without illusions of grandeur in the real world where there is a rival as powerful as we are, we shall find — no matter what the Pentagon is now able to do — that our power and influence will continue to decline.

New York City Has Big Racial Problem

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP) — Southern objectors to the integration of their public school systems probably will be astonished to learn that the place of Negroes in the community also is causing some difficulty in New York City.

New York is the capital city of civil rights, the minority racial groups there being large, numerous and possessed of maximum political wallop. It is now 25 weeks, however, that the General Welfare Committee of the Municipal Council of the City of New York has been considering a proposal to relieve Negroes from discrimination in better class housing.

Mr. Wilson

Introduced on May 21 was a proposal to make it unlawful to discriminate for reasons of race, color, religion, national origin or ancestry in the rental or sale of dwelling space. There were public hearings in mid-June whereafter the proposal was sent back to committee.

Real Estate Boards Oppose

Individuals who urgently championed civil rights legislation which was before Congress last summer were somewhat less enthusiastic about the anti-discrimination project pending before their own governing agency. The real estate boards in all five boroughs of New York City opposed the ordinance.

The mail count at City Hall was 3-to-1 against. Some councilmen said their mail was 4-to-1 against enabling Negroes to buy or rent whatever they could afford. The proposal was substantially amended to eliminate a $500 penalty for the discrimination described. The committee also exempted cooperative apartments from the anti-discrimination stipulation.

The implication of the ordinance's most recent history is that it was set aside to cool pending last week's mayoralty election in New York. An advocate of the ordinance had this to say this week in a letter to the New York Times:

"Further delay or defeat of this bill would be an admission that New York City, despite its moral horror at what happened at Little Rock, does not itself believe in the civil rights that it professes to uphold. For all recognize that this is more than a matter of housing; we know especially that the schools we say we wish to integrate can never truly achieve this goal unless we desegregate our housing patterns."

Few Non-Negro Areas

This reference to missing the goal of school integration in New York City is part of the city's racial problem from another angle. It relates to the fact that there are public school districts in New York City in which there are no Negro families or very few.

It is difficult, therefore, to enable white and Negro children to attend those schools together for lack of Negro children. The proposed ordinance against discrimination in the sale or rental of dwelling units presumably would enable Negro families with children to move into the all - white school districts—and the elements of school integration would be at hand.

All of this may sound like coded Greek to southern readers, but it is the pattern of the integration problem as it has developed in New York.

Psychiatrist, Patient New Comedy Team

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP)—It may be a true symbol of our shaky - tense age, a time when every man seems bent on mooning around in exploration of the outer spaces of his own mind, that a new comedy team has established itself in the everyday world of the common joke.

The team consists of the psychiatrist and his patient, plus the standard props of psychiatrist's couch and notebook. The combo sometimes varies — patient and patient; or doctor and doctor — but the basic idea is the same.

Simple, If Not Pure

That great old workhorse joke team, Pat and Mike, whose doings and sayings were simple, if not always too pure, has just about ended its orbiting. The mother-in-law and son - in - law team, a hardy fact of life, seems a bit worn in its routine.

The traveling salesman, in person, has been disappearing from the American scene during the last generation—and so, naturally, have the jokes about him and the farmer's daughter.

But the psychiatrist is having a heyday—from the simple exchange of greetings to the long and winding story.

The simple exchange may be patient-to-patient. Two psychiatrically aware gents, friends, pass each other on the street.

First patient: "Hello."

Second patient (musing): "Now, what did he mean by that?"

Or it may be doctor-to-doctor. Two psychiatrists meet, and one opens the conversation: "Hello. You're fine; how'm I?"

Slopped Into Goldwynism

The thing has, logically enough, slopped over into the field of the simple Goldwynism. Sam Goldwyn is alleged to have said: "Anybody who would go to a psychiatrist ought to have his head examined "

And then, there is the young lady whose family urged her to go to a psychiatrist because she liked pancakes. She plopped onto the couch.

Psychiatrist: "Now tell me about yourself."

Girl: "My folks say I should see you because I like pancakes."

Psychiatrist: "Because you like pancakes?"

Girl: "Yes. I'm quite fond of them."

Psychiatrist: "Look, my dear. That's perfectly natural Almost everybody likes pancakes. I like them very much myself."

Girl: "Well! You must come to my house. I've got 500 trunks full."

Sometimes the theme goes into a proud-parent routine. One lady meets another: "I must tell you what a wonderful son I have! Twice a week he goes to this head-doctor, and he pays $50 an hour, and he lies there on a couch —and all he does is talk about me."

ON THE BALL

By CLAIR BROWN

Ol' Phil Making Last Stands

Ol' Phil Fumble is just about ready to hang up his predicting togs and store his crystal ball away but he sort of wishes the season was just starting when he sees how well he's done the past couple of weeks. Last week, for instance he had a chart of 11 right, four wrong out of 15 to jump his average to .723 on a season record of 81-31. Here's what he sees for this week: Monessen at DONORA; CHARLEROI at Redstone; North Union at BELLMAR; CALIFORNIA at Carmichaels; CLAIRTON at Duquesne; CONNELLSVILLE at Brownsville; Dormont at CANONSBURG; GERMAN at Masontown; Ellsworth at BETH JOINT; DUNBAR at Georges.

Pitt line coach Jack Wiley brands absolutely false the story that Connellsville's Jim Cunningham is dissatisfied with the Panther set-up . . . On the contrary, claims Jack, Cunningham is very happy and has been used sparingly in Pitt Frosh games because he is favoring a leg injury . . . According to other reports on the situation, there is more than meets the eye to stories being circulated that the former Coker flash is unhappy . . . Word from another grid college campus has it that a valley standout of last season is having a little scholastic difficulty and under the school's policy of permiting freshmen to practice proportionately to their classroom work, is drilling only twice a week . . . His gridiron work is another story for his coaches are very well pleased in that department.

'Parent's Night' Affair Terrific

It seems that the "Parent's Night" affair here following the Duquesne game Friday night was much more than just a serving of refreshments in the Vocational School . . . First of all, the room in which the "party" was held was decorated in a football motiff, featuring the Monessen black and white school colors . . . The serving table was decorated with flowers and candles and a football hanging from the ceiling . . . Superintendent of Schools Dr. Joseph Pallone, and Coach Armand Niccolai addressed the parents and gridders . . . Special guests were High School Principal Henry Furio, Faculty Manager of Athletics Armand Mori, Junior High Principal Alfred Hazelbaker, School Board members Alexander Kachmarik and Nick Cullen, chairman of the Monessen High School Athletic Association, which sponsored the event, assisted in wonderful fashion by the Parent-Teachers Association

Here's one for the books . . . Bill Bechdel, popular district sports official, who formerly lived in Belle Vernon, was transfered to Johnstown by his employers last year after he had signed officiating contracts with many valley schools . . . Bill made the trips to the valey from Johnstown all through the long winter months last year to honor the contracts, a very fine gesture . . . So, this year he arranged contracts with Johnstown area teams to avoid the long trips and now rumor has it he has been transferred to Aliquippa . . . There's no justice, huh, Bill? . . . Speaking of officials, Bud Roman, Monessen's popular sports arbiter, worked that Pitt-Slippery Rock soccer match this week in which the Panthers knocked the Rockers from the unbeaten ranks.

Today's Sports Parade—

Burdette Still Making Records—Musically

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)— Lew Burdette, the man who put Don Larsen in the shade, set his sights today on a pair of golfers named Don Cherry and Perry Como as well as a boxer named Frank Sinatra.

Burdette, the biggest thing in Milwaukee since throw-away bottles, isn't satisfied with having made selling platters out of the New York Yankees in the late World Series. Now he's going to start selling platters.

For this week the sinker-ball man turns singer as Dot Records brings out a disc which purportedly is a dandy.

The piece de resistance of the platter, it having two sides, is a song titled "Three Strikes and You're Out." This may not be news, particularly to the Yankees, but it is billed as "an original love song with a baseball twist."

The other side has the baritone Burdette warbling "Mary Lou." This is not to be confused with "Merry Lew," it actually being a pit song from the days when you and I were much younger, Maggie.

YES, I DEW

There may be some snide remarks anent this side of the record. Lew has been fingered occasionally by some perplexed batsmen as a man who deals in the illegal spitball. And one of the lines of "Mary Lou" promises:

"I love you, yes I dew."

The spelling may be a bit out of line there, but that's the way it's going to be interpreted and you can bet your seventh game ticket stub on that. This was the game, incidentally, which launched Burdette on his new singing career as he stomped the mighty Yankees for the third time.

Burdette hails from Nitro, W.Va., and so does a Milwaukee fan named Mac Wiseman who, when not listening to baseball games, runs a recording company. Mac wasn't particularly capitalizing on Burdette's new-won fame. Of course not.

"Shucks," Wiseman explains, "I just new that any old boy from West Virginia can sing."

Other Athletic Warblers

He may have something there because Sammy Snead has a torrid set of tonsils. But Slammin' Sam, along with such golfing garglers as Jimmy Demaret and Claude Harmon, turned their backs on the mike in favor of fresh air and sunshine.

Bellmar Hosts North Union

Season Finale Tonight

Bellmar High School can expect a rugged test as it lowers the curtain on the 1957 season tonight against North Union at the Bellmar Stadium.

The Rams of Coach Nick Bubonovich show a 5-2 record with victories over such rugged contenders as Masontown (13-7), mythical Fayette County Class B champions, Class A Carmichaels (6-0, Waynesburg (21-19), and Dunbar (21-6), St. Vincent Prep (39-7), but dropping the last two outings to German Township (25-0) and South Union (13-7). The last two losses were to teams which also posted victories over Bellmar and the margins of defeat were very nearly the same, the 'Cane losing to German 36-13 and to South Union, 6-0.

Yauger Rugged Fullback

Pacing North Union is Rich Yauger, 175-pound fullback, who is the team's leading groundgainer. He receives excellent help from Bill Swaney, who handles the quarterback duties and is rated a neat passer, plus running assistance from halfbacks Steve Krevinik and Paul Saluga.

Up front Joe Bartok, 195-pound center and Tom Sankovich, 215-pound tackle are defensive stalwarts. Big Joe Opalko, first-string end, is the team's leading pass-snatcher with four touchdown catches to his credit. He possesses big hands which make him dangerous once the ball gets near him.

Usual 'Cane Starters

Coach Bap Manzini will go with his usual first team of Percy Cranford and Bill Kubin or Mike Comadena at ends, Ron Schmidt, Gary Grant or Bill Barker at tackles, O'Toole, Frank Burgess or Ken Waugaman at guards, Bill Mullen at center in front of a backfield of Ron Coates, sophomore passing whiz; Dennis Swiantek, coming into his own as a runner, and Larry Rankin at the halves; and pile-driving Reggie Kostelac at fullback.

Swiantek and Coates paced the win over Dunbar last week for the Manzinimen and "Bap" is hoping they can do a repeat tonight. Kickoff time is set for 8 o'clock.

Schmidt, Kostelac, Ralph Greco, Kubin, Waugaman, Ken Strenske and Andy Stefanik will end their high school careers tonight.

Monessen-Donora Games Traditional

When Monessen and Donora High clash at Donora tomorrow night in their annual grid meeting they will be renewing one of the oldest rivalries in the Monongahela Valley.

The two valley rivals first met in 1911 and except for 1912 and 1918 when they did not meet have played continually, or, in other words, since the 1919 clash they have not missed a game.

Monessen holds a slight edge over the Dragons of 21 wins to 16 for Donora with five ties.

Coach Armand Niccolai's lads also have a three-year winning streak going having defeated the Dragons in 1954, (27-6) in 1955 (20-0) and 40-21 in 1956 after dropping two of the highest scoring tilts in the series by 37-21 in 1952 and 34-7 in 1953.

Most of the games have been hard-fought but occasionally they develop into offensive shows like the 1956 game, the '52 and '53 games but from 1934 until 1942 not more than a touchdown separated the rivals and two of the five ties in the series were chalked up during this period.

Dragons Getting Stronger

As usual the Dragons are getting stronger this season as the campaign nears a close, a habit with Jimmy Russell-coached elevens, who start slow then pick up momentum to rank with the toughest teams in the area by the end of the season.

Russell will show an experienced team against Monessen tomorrow night with Bing Alcott and Butler Roddy or Hal Rice at ends, Nick Kuzemka, nephew of Monessen assistant mentor Nick Kuzemka, and Larry Staffen at tackles, Niell Clark, son of Donora assistant Moon Clark, and Butch Tokay at guards, with Wally Fronzaglio at center.

In the backfield it'll be Davey Russell at quarterback with high-scoring Angie Dabiero and Tom Watson at halfbacks and Tom Urbanik, powerful junior fullback, completing the ball-handling quartet.

All but Urbanik and Kuzemka are seniors.

Papantonakis, Grillo High in GAPA League

George Papantonakis and Auggie Grillo continued to show the way in the GAPA Bowling League with the former hitting for a 526 three-game high and Grillo posting a 210 single game.

Ted Apodiakos, Chuck Miller, Jim Peters, Paul Ciccarelli and John Apodiakos also rolled high totals.

Zeus and Apollos topped Thor and Spartans.

Standings — Spartans 21-9, Zeus 20-10, Thors 14-16 and Apollos 5-25.

Bellmar's Cage Tilts At Marion

Dr. Harold Underwood, chairman of the athletic committee of the Bellmarette Joint School Board, announced at the Tuesday evening board session in the High School Library, that Bellmar will play all varsity basketball games at the Marion Junior High gymnasium this season.

This action was made necessary by the construction program at Bellmar. Tickets will be purchased for the squad members who will use the public bus for transportation.

Supervising Principal Robert VanBremen will schedule practice sessions for the Bellmar and Marion Junior High squads.

The basketball schedules for Bellmar High, Marion and Vernon Junior High Schools were approved.

Admission to all games was set the same as last year. High School fees will be 75 cents for adults and 25 for children. The two Junior Highs will charge 35 cents and 15 cents.

It was also voted to have all basketball players not already protected by insurance, insured.

Plans were made to have all football equipment cleaned at the close of the season.

Postponed Clash Reset for 2 o'clock Afternoon Contest

One of Monessen's many postponed games was rescheduled today with the announcement that the Greyhounds would battle Hempfield Township here on Saturday, Nov. 23 in an afternoon clash.

MHS Principal Henry Furio stated that the "game would be played at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon according to a plan formulated several weeks ago to play the postponements in the afternoon."

Furio also announced that the game with Johnstown has been officially cancelled but that the Johnnies would come here next season as they were to have done this year and the contract will be resumed on that basis with the Monessen eleven visiting Johnstown in 1959.

There was no official word on the Brownsville game as to whether it would be played on Thanksgiving Day as originally planned.

When the word is received officially on the Brownsville clash the locals will have completed their home card without missing a game since Hempfield has agreed to come here instead of the locals going to Hempfield as called for in the original schedule.

Managers Claim Machen Won't Get Shot at Title

SAN FRANCISCO (UP — Eddie Machen, a hero in California but still a bum as far as Floyd Patterson's manager is concerned might just as well quit dreaming of a crack at the world crown because he won't get one.

Those are the sentiments at least of Lippe Breidbart, manager of Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, whom the undefeated Machen stopped after ten rounds Wednesday night for his 24th professional triumph The nationally televised fight had been scheduled for 12 heats.

"Machen left my boy in worse condition than Patterson did in their title fight last July." Breidbart said "But Floyd never will face him Floyd only likes to take on amateurs — and Machen definitely ain't one."

Breidbart's guess that Machen and Patterson won't meet seemed to be backed by Cus D'Amato manager of the champion. D'Amato claimed Pete Rademacher, taken out by Patterson in six rounds, "would have knocked out Machen in three or four rounds."

"I never considered him (Machen) nearly as good as Patterson, and this fight lowered him further in my estimation," D'Amato said. "But I offered Machen the first shot at Patterson's title last summer, and his manager repeatedly made things difficult for us So, he's still out, as far as we're concerned."

Sportsmen's Corner—

Black Bear Proves Interesting Game

The black bear is symbolic of wilderness country, where many sportsmen find their greatest outdoor satisfaction. Anyone experiences a thrill when he sees a bear. And who doesn't speculate on the size and power of a bruin that has pulverized a stump with a swipe of a paw, dug claw marks into the bark of a "measuring tree" or left tell-tale prints on a trail?

While not a true hibernator, the black bear builds up a reserve of fats before winter sets in and it often dens in a cave or hollow stump, particularly if the animal is a female anticipating a blessed event after which the young need protection. During mild winters mature males sometimes sleep in the open, with no protection at all. Covered with snow they resemble a huge rock, one that moves and growls as some startled hunters have learned.

Black bears eat both vegetable and animal foods. They feed on insects, fish, larvae, nuts, fruits, vegetables, succulent roots, and small mammals. If ravenously hungry in late winter, before natural foods are available, an individual may make off with a sheep, young pig or poultry, and he relishes honey wherever he can locate it. Bears causing damage are at times live trapped and released elsewhere in good hinterland habitat.

The diminutive size and premature appearance of newborn bears have excited much comment. At birth the young are barely the size of a guinea pig, are nearly naked and weigh but 8 to 12 ounces. In Pennsylvania the cubs usually are born in January. The hibernating mother protects and warms the nursing youngsters with her body during the two cold months that follow. The eyes of the infants do not open until six weeks after birth. Cubs do not leave the den of their own accord until the weather moderates in late winter, at which time they weigh 5 or 6 pounds. The young, numbering from one to three, rarely four, remain with the mother until fall at least. During these months they have her protection, and receive demonstrations on how to live successfully. The female bears young every other year, after maturity is reached. The life span of the black bear is about 25 years.

Cubs Not Legal

Hunters often see two or three cubs with a large female during the bear season. The youngsters average from 40 to 60 pounds then, and are not legal game in this state. By the time the next autumn arrives the young bears weigh from 120 to 140 pounds, and have reached the age they may lawfully be taken.

Black bears are not normally vicious, but since they are never trustworthy it is unwise for humans to approach them closely. Bears see poorly, except at close range, but their senses of hearing and smell are acute.

Call them what you will — clowns of the woods, bee hive wreckers or whatever — to a host of outdoorsmen who enjoy hunting them in our mountains and swamplands the black bear is the most valuable trophy animal in the Commonwealth.

LEON GOOSE GOSLIN

Washington's greatest left-handed slugger, Goose Goslin hit 127 homers in 11 years with the Senators for a team record. During his 18 major league seasons, ending in 1938, he "goosed" seven homers in three different Washington World Series and led his league in batting in 1928 with .379

Rock 'em, Sock 'em Football Key to Amherst Success

AMHERST, Mass (UP) — A "dedicated" group of lads who "love to block and tackle" is the key to unbeaten, untied Amherst's success this season.

The back-to-the-fundamentals campaign has carried the Lord Jeffs to seven straight victories and the title of New England's top small college team.

Amherst, which ends its season against "Little Three" opponent Williams Saturday, reigns as the area's sole entry boasting a perfect record Williams, also undefeated, shows a tie with unbeaten Tufts

"There are two reasons why we've been able to do so well this year," said Amherst coach John Mc Laughry. "One is that we had a pretty fair team last year composed largely of sophomores and juniors. They've come along this season with that extra year of experience.

"But, more important, they seem to love to block and tackle. The boys do both better than any other team I've had. And they are the most dedicated group I've had. They really get out and work."

The hard work with the emphasis on the basic components has paid off handsomely for Amherst It has rolled up 264 points against only 40 by the opposition Its hard-hitting line has held the opponents to an average of 150 yards gained per game while its fleet backs have piled up 415 yards per game

"We're not a spectacular team, with long runs and such," said Mc Laughry, who quarterbacked and captained Brown in 1939. "But we concentrate on ball possession This has allowed us to control most of the games."

LA Fans Refuse to Call Dodgers 'Bums'

LOS ANGELES (UP) — The Dodgers may have been known affectionately in Brooklyn as "the Bums" but in their new Los Angeles home that nickname will not be used by newspapers.

The newly-organized Los Angeles Chapter of the Baseball Writers of America today went on record as frowning on the use of the nickname "Bums" and voted to refer to the club only as the Dodgers.

Elbie Nickel Announces Retirement 'For Sure'

By RUDY CERNKOVIC

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The "old man" of the Pittsburgh Steelers made it emphatic today that this was his last "comeback" and that his block and tackles next year would be of another variety.

It was Elbie Nickel speaking. The indestructible end who began his block and tackles next year reer 10 years ago with the Steelers changed his mind about retirement last summer and came back "for just one more season."

"The only block and tackles I'll worry about from now on will be in the construction business with my father in Chillicothe, Ohio," said Elbie.

When Nickel sat out the game against the Philadelphia Eagles last Oct. 27 because of an arm injury, his consecutive playing streak, an NFL record, ended at 124 games. He had played every game with the Steelers since 1947 when he broke into pro ball under Jock Sutherland.

"That Sutherland was great in his day," Elbie said. "We certainly did block under the single wing But it was unusual when we passed more than 15 times a game Now it's unusual when we pass less than 30 or 40 times with the 'T'."

Compares Brown Teams

Nickel, who started "a new streak" when he played against the Cleveland Browns last Sunday admitted the Ohio team was still rugged.

"But it was not as tough as the Browns three or four seasons ago," he said.

It will be a long time before another Steeler equals Elbie's club records. Aside from his durability mark, he has four other Steeler records. He caught the most passes in one season—62 in 1953 and gained the most yardage on passers in a single campaign with 844 in 1952.

Another club mark was written when Elbie caught nine touchdown passes in 1952. His record for the most yards gained on passes in a single game—202 in 1952—has not been matched by a Steeler since.

Learned From Parker

Nickel said he learned new pass patterns when Buddy Parker took over as Steeler coach this season.

"We got new ideas about blocking and passing," he said, "which proves you are never too old to learn.

"Sure, I'll miss the game when I quit. But you gotta be lucky to stay as long as I did. I found no regrets—just happiness in the game," the 34-year-old player said.

Bill McPeak, a defensive end in his ninth season with the Steelers, entered the club dressing room while Elbie was philosophizing.

"Listen to the old man," McPeak laughed. "Next year he'll be sitting before his television set, chewing his fingers on every Steeler play."

Maykovich In First In Open Hearth

Maykovich's took over first place in the Open Hearth Bowling League with a blanking of Whitehouse last night as John Zdilla with a 230 single game and Ed Kurtz with a 531 three-game total led the scorers.

In addition to the Maykovich win, Balmer and Van Marter also posted victories Andy Dacko, Curt Mitchell, Bert Brown, Tom Kerestes, and John Contine also rolled high scores.

Standings — Maykovich 23-10, Weddells 21-12, Balmers 17-16, Minaedi 13-20, Whitehouse 13-20, Van Marter 12-21.

The peak wartime average output of crude oil in 1945 reached some four million, 695 thousand barrels a day.

Rooney Supports Colt-'Skin Series

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Art Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers, today supported a suggestion that the Washington Redskins play a home-and-home series with the Baltimore colts.

The recommendation was made by George Preston Marshall, owner of the Redskins.

"I think Marshall is right in desiring that his team play Baltimore, a backyard rival," Rooney said. "And I think that the Colts should be in the National Football League's Eastern Division. It's geographically sound"

Rooney said that recently Walter Woolfner, president of the Chicago Cardinals, had indicated his team "had made a big mistake by leaving the Western Division for the Eastern Division."

"Again it's a matter of geography," Rooney said. "If the Cardinals returned to the Western Division, they could play the Bears in the home town of the teams twice a year"

Injured Heel May Curtail Richard's Hockey Career

By UNITED PRESS

TORONTO, ont. (UP)—Maurice (Rocket) Richard, hockey's most colorful and high-scoring player, faced a threat to his career today in a cut achilles tendon that will send him to the sidelines "for at least five weeks."

The 36-year-old Montreal Canadiens star was injured in the second period here Wednesday night as the Canadiens strengthened their hold on first place in the National Hockey League with a 4-2 win over Toronto.

Richard was sweeping toward the Toronto net in one of his typical scoring drives when the accident occurred. Dick Duff of Toronto closed in on Richard and drove him against the boards at the back of the cage.

Richard fell to the ice and the blade of one of Duff's skates accidentally slashed his right leg, cutting it wide open.

In the only other NHL game Wednesday night, the second-place New York Rangers and third-place Chicago Black Hawks played to a 2-2 tie in New York.

Major League Owners Await Annual Draft

NEW YORK (UP)—Big league clubowners hold their annual "bargain basement day" on Dec. 2 at Colorado Springs, Colo, when they study a list of minor leaguers that range from "octogenarian" Satchel Paige to Nippy Jones, a real live World Series hero of 1957.

The rummage sale, better known as the annual draft, is a feature of the major league meetings. For as little as $2,000 or as much as $15,000, an owner can take the chance that his choice will blossom into a star. Few choices do but the owners don't stop trying.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick, who supervises the drawing, announced that players selected from the open classification will go for $15,000. Triple A players are available for $10,000, double A for $7,500; Class A for $6,000, Class B for $4,000, Class C for $2,500 and Class D for $2,000. Most of the players selected come from the top two brackets.

The Washington Senators will get first pick, as befits their eighth-place standing in the American League, followed by the Pittsburgh Pirates, the eighth-place National League team. The world champion Milwaukee Braves have the 16th choice.

City Wants to Expedite Schoonmaker Job

Monessen City officials and state Highway Dept. district engineers will meet tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in the City Building to discuss the current Schoonmaker Ave. improvement project. Also present will be representatives of the Frank Donatelli Co., Pittsburgh, general contractors.

The City is seeking means to expedite the project in order to have a portion of Schoonmaker Ave. ready for traffic around the Christmas holiday shopping season.

The widening and repaving program is from 17th St. to near Sixth St. on Schoonmaker Ave.' It has blocked off the western entrance to Monessen, forcing detours for motorists from Belle Vernon, Charleroi and other western points.

Before Holiday

Tomorrow's meeting was called, according to Mayor Hugo J. Parente, to see "what can be done about having the street paved and ready for traffic from 17th to the intersection of Schoonmaker and Morgan Ave. before the holiday shopping season begins."

The mayor said once the street is usable to the Morgan intersection, motorists can use Morgan Ave. to get into and out of the City. There would be no parking permitted on Morgan during this detour.

Tomorrow the City will discuss the possibility of using high-early strength concrete, a quick-drying substance, to expedite the project. It will ask the state representatives if the idea is feasible — both physically and financially.

The quick-drying substance cures or hardens sufficiently for traffic use in three days, while regular-type concrete should set for about 14 days before use.

Donatelli informed City officials that he is "willing to do anything within reason in order to get a portion of the road open."

He said the City wants the street open to Morgan Ave. first and then to 12th streets. He said "just as soon as all the utilities have taken care of their end of the project, we can start moving with the paving to 12th street."

The Peoples Natural Gas Co. and the Authority of the Boro of Charleroi have completed just about all of their work to or beyond Morgan. West Penn Power Co. and Bell Telephone Co., which share the responsibility for the utility poles and lines, will move in all available equipment and men over the weekend to complete its work to 12th St.

Donatelli said if all the utility work is completed to 12th St. by Wednesday, his men will begin laying paving forms and then start pouring concrete from 17th St. to Morgan and then to 12th St.

He said he would like to have the Morgan Ave. detour ready between Dec. 1 and Dec. 15.

"We hope the weather is good to us and nothing too serious happens otherwise. A lot depends on tomorrow's meeting, too," the contractor stated.

Story of Cone Recovery

CINCINNATI (UP)—Top U.S. Defense Department officials today revealed the story of how this nation fired a "man - made meteor" into outer space and then got it back.

The "meteor" is the nose cone of a Jupiter-C missile which President Eisenhower showed the American people on television last Thursday night.

The only explanation which he offered then was that it had been "hundreds of miles to outer space and back."

The nose cone is the first known object ever to be recovered from outer space, a feat Russia is not yet believed to have accomplished.

Defense officials said advanced Army rocketry caused the nose cone to do the following:

Glow like a falling star.

Think for itself.

Expel a parachute to slow it down.

Toss out a balloon and inflate it.

Eject and explode bombs.

Turn intself into a radio broadcasting station.

Light a flashing beacon.

Mark its landing spot in the Atlantic Ocean.

And — finally — spread shark repellent so Navy divers could retrieve it.

The officials who revealed the story were: Alvin G. Waggoner, adviser to the defense secretary on guided missiles; Col. John H. Swenson of the U.S. Army, an assistant for research and engineering; and Capt. Leslie M. Slack of the U.S. Navy, director of surface weapons systems for naval ordnance.

Holy Name in Program for Education Week

A special program marked the Holy Name parochial school observance of American Education Week yesterday.

Sister Frances Louise, vocational directress of the Vincentian Sisters of Charity, was the principal speaker.

Also offering remarks were Harry R Pore Jr., editor of The Daily Independent; Rev. Joseph Gajdostik, Holy Name pastor, and Sister Mary Richard, school principal.

Rev. Augustine Stefko, S. T. D., assistant pastor, pronounced the invocation.

A play entitled "A Girl Named Marlene" was presented by grades 5 and 6.

After the program which was conducted in the church auditorium, the school conducted an "open house" for parents and friends.

State Securing Property for Access Highway

The state Highway Department has instituted condemnation proceedings to secure property necessary to convert a 16-mile stretch of Relocated Route 31 into a limited access highway.

N. G. Bell, district Highway Department engineer, said today that several of the involved property owners have already received letters informing them of the action. He said the remaining owners will be notified soon.

According to Bell, the property is needed to convert Relocated Route 31 into a limited access highway from Bentleyville to the intersection with Route 51.

The federal government has already appropriated more than $4,000,000 for the construction of interchanges and marginal roads which are necessary before the route becomes limited access.

Tuna Chowder Is Tasty And Easy to Prepare

If suddenly you yearn for a fish chowder, you can have a very good one by marketing in your pantry rather than going to market on a rainy or snowy day. You are almost certain to have in a few cans of tuna on hand, and you'll be surprised what a good chowder this makes.

Edith Barber

By the way, when you open the cans, drain off the oil but do not discard it. It is full of flavor and the onion and green pepper should be simmered in it for a few minutes. If you prefer the New England type of chowder, diced potatoes may be added with boiling water and cooked until they are tender. Then the milk and drained tuna may be added and allowed to simmer until the chowder is thoroughly heated.

Another type of chowder that contains milk but also strained, well-seasoned tomatoes is a sort of cross between Manhattan and New England specialties. The large pilot crackers are often served with chowder, but any type of crisp cracker goes very well with it. Just be sure that generous portions are served.

If you like, grated Parmesan cheese may be passed for sprinkling on top of the soup after it has been served. Instead, you may prefer to have minced parsley or water cress.

Tuna Vegetable Chowder

2 cans (6 ½-ounce each) chunk-style tuna
1 medium onion, sliced
¼ cup chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk
1 can (No. 303) tomatoes
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon sugar
1 bay leaf

Drain tuna, reserving oil. Cook onion and green pepper in tuna oil, 5 minutes. Add flour, salt and pepper and blend. Gradually add milk, and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Combine tomatoes, celery seed, sugar and bay leaf. Heat to boiling point and simmer 5 minutes. Force through sieve or food mill. Add tomato mixture to milk mixture. Add tuna and heat, stirring occasionally. Top with grated Parmesan cheese, or minced parsley or water cress. Yiled: 6 servings.

CHOWDER

Drain oil from 2 cans tuna and reserve. Place oil in kettle, add 2 medium onions sliced, and cook slowly about 3 minutes. Add 3 cups diced potato and 2 cups boiling water. Cover and cook until potatoes are tender. Add tuna and 1 quart milk. Bring slowly almost to boiling point.

'A Good Diet' Should Describe Well Chosen Meals

What does the phrase "a good diet," mean? It should be used to describe well-chosen meals, good nutritionally and with appetite appeal. Strangely enough, the word diet is applied nowadays to a meal plan that is limited in some respects.

Folks talk about "salt free" and "low fat" and "reducing" diets. Special foods have long been available in health food or drug stores. There has been such a demand for low calorie products that most supermarkets devote a special section for displays of them. The sales are good, in spite of the fact that most foods in this category are a little more expensive than the usual staples.

Fortunately, there has been a great effort in the last few years to improve the so-called diet foods. Many of them have taste appeal, and this enables a dieter to use a larger variety in his meals than otherwise would be the case. One of the reasons it is difficult to stick long to any food plan different from the normal is the monotony which so often results from limiting the foods that can be used.

YOUR FOOD PROBLEM

By Edith M. Barber

HEARTY TUNA CHOWDER, New England or Manhattan style, can be prepared in a jiffy for luncheon or supper from staples on your pantry shelves. Serve it hot and generous with a sparkling of grated Parmesan or minced parsley or water cress.

—TASTY RECIPES—

PIQUANT CARROTS

Scrape and dice carrots. Cook in small amount of salted water until just tender. Drain, and sprinkle liberally with lemon or orange juice, and with grated orange rind.

HERB SALAD DRESSING

1 egg
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon mustard
¼ teaspoon marjoram
¼ teaspoon rosemary
½ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups water
½ cup wine vinegar
2 teaspoons sucaryl solution

Beat egg thoroughly. Combine dry ingredients and add to beaten egg. Add water, vinegar and sucaryl solution, beating well. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat and cool.

THE THEDA BARA SLIMMEROO

2 cups liquified instant dry milk

1 teaspoon juice

1 cup raspberry or orange sherbet

Put all ingredients in chilled blender or bowl. Cover and run blender, or beat with rotary beater until mixture is foamy. Yield: 4 servings.

THE OH, YOU KID FIZZ

Place 2 scoops of pineapple sherbet in each of 6 tall glasses. Pour ½ cup pineapple juice in each glass. Fill each glass with carbonated water, stirring constantly. Serve at once. Garnish with mint sprigs, if desired. Yield: 6 servings.

Fat Free Sodas Are Made from Dry Milk Recipe

One of the treats of childhood was a visit to an ice cream parlor. Various flavors of ice creams and sodas and milk shakes were featured. They were served at cold marbletop tables and folks sat on hard iron chairs, but this did not interfere with enjoyment.

The setting was reproduced at an old-fashioned milk parlor set up at the Food Editors' Conference. The soda dispensers were gentlemen garbed in seersucker suits and flaunting large mustaches. They offered a choice of: The Theda Bara Slimmeroo, Mrs. O'Leary's Brown Cow, The Oh, You Kid Fizz, The 65 Skidoo Nog.

There was a modern touch to the service. The specialties were all prepared with instant dry milk (fat free).

The Editors all agreed the soda idea could be duplicated to great advantage when there are children in the household. It provides a painless method of introducing more milk, always an asset in supplying an in-between meal snack for hungry young people of any age. It was proved grownups themselves could also be enticed to drink more milk.

The giant clam of the East Indies is one of the greatest living mollusks. Hollowed shells may weigh 500 pounds.

Mellon Dividend Proposed

Action to permit the payment of a 2 per cent stock dividend was recommended to the shareholders of Mellon National Bank and Trust Co. by the bank's board of directors at their regular monthly meeting in Pittsburgh this week.

W.K. Whiteford, president of the Gulf Oil Corp., and I.W. Wilson, chairman of the board of Alcoa, were elected to the board at the same meeting.

The directors also declared a quarterly dividend of one dollar a share payable on December 9 to shareholders of record on November 18.

To make the stock dividend possible, the shareholders must authorize an increase in the bank's capital from $60,100,000 to $61,302,000 and an increase in the number of shares outstanding from 2,404,000 to 2,452,080. The per value of the shares would remain at twenty-five dollars. The directors recommended that such action be taken at the shareholders' annual meeting on January 28, 1958. Payment of the stock dividend also is dependent on approval by the Comptroller of the Currency.

In making the recommendation, according to a statement by Richard K. Mellon, chairman of the board, and Frank R. Denton, vice chairman, "the board of directors is conscious of a responsibility for the bank to develop consistently with the nation's growth and with the continuing demands for banking services, as well as of a responsibility to our shareholders to maintain a strong foundation upon which to provide for the future."

Indignant Woman Bites Postman

NEW YORK (UP) — Dog bites postman is pretty common these days but postman Leroy Hunter made the news with a new twist. He got bitten on his appointed rounds by an indignant woman.

Hunter charged in felony court Wednesday that Mrs. Gloria Rohan, 21, put the bite on his wrist in a tussle for her relief check. He had maintained the regulations required he put the check in her mailbox.

Despite defense attorney Benjamin Schmier's contention that Mrs. Rohan's flase choppers were "so poorly constructed they couldn't bite anyone," Magistrate Neal P. Bottiglieri ordered her held in $500 bail for trial on third degree assault charges.

Benjamin Franklin Is Elementary School

(This is another in a series of articles prepared by the Monessen Education Association as part of the 1957 observance of American Education week. Today's article, written by teacher Eva J. Passoja, deals with the Benjamin Franklin elementary school.)

By EVA J. PASSOJA

The Benjamin Franklin School, a three-story, buff-colored brick building located on Manown St., contains 16 classrooms, three gymnasiums, a principal's office, and a library.

In 1929, when the school was erected, Clark R McClelland was superintendent of Monessen Schools, and Frank D. Bumbaugh and Dr. Francis C. Duvall were president and secretary of the Board of School Directors. The architect was H. Ernest Clark.

Murino De Angelis, who is the building head, also teaches remedial reading from grades one to six. The faculty members of the Benjamin Franklin School are: Mrs. Ida G. Siple, kindergarten, Miss Rebecca Grove, grade 1, Mrs. Miriam C. Scales, grade 2, Miss Esther Johnson, grade 3; Mrs. Ann B. Ritzer, grade 4; Mrs. Eva J. Passoja, grade 5; Miss Esther E. Rhoades, grade 6 and Miss Nancy McCallum, music, and physical education

There are several special teachers, each of whom spends a half-day per week at the school. Miss Tyyne Hanninen works with speech problems of pupils Paul J Passoja and Julius D'Alfonso teach instrumental music. Special testing is done by Mrs. Effie Sylvester, school psychologist.

During the past year, the entire school has been repainted, fluorescent lights have been installed a new gas furnace has taken the place of coal, and a guard rail has been erected in front of the building.

Upon entering the front door of the building, one pauses and reads the inscription above the door which states:

"Enter to learn
Go forth to serve."

AURORA, Colo. (UP) — Police officer David Wilhelm got drunk in police headquarters Tuesday. He drank 11 shots of straight whiskey. Officer Richard Rusk drank seven cans of beer, but wasn't quite drunk. Chief Spencer Garrett praised the two men for their actions. They were testing a machine that measures the alcohol content of the blood. The city is considering purchasing one of the machines, but wanted to try it out first.

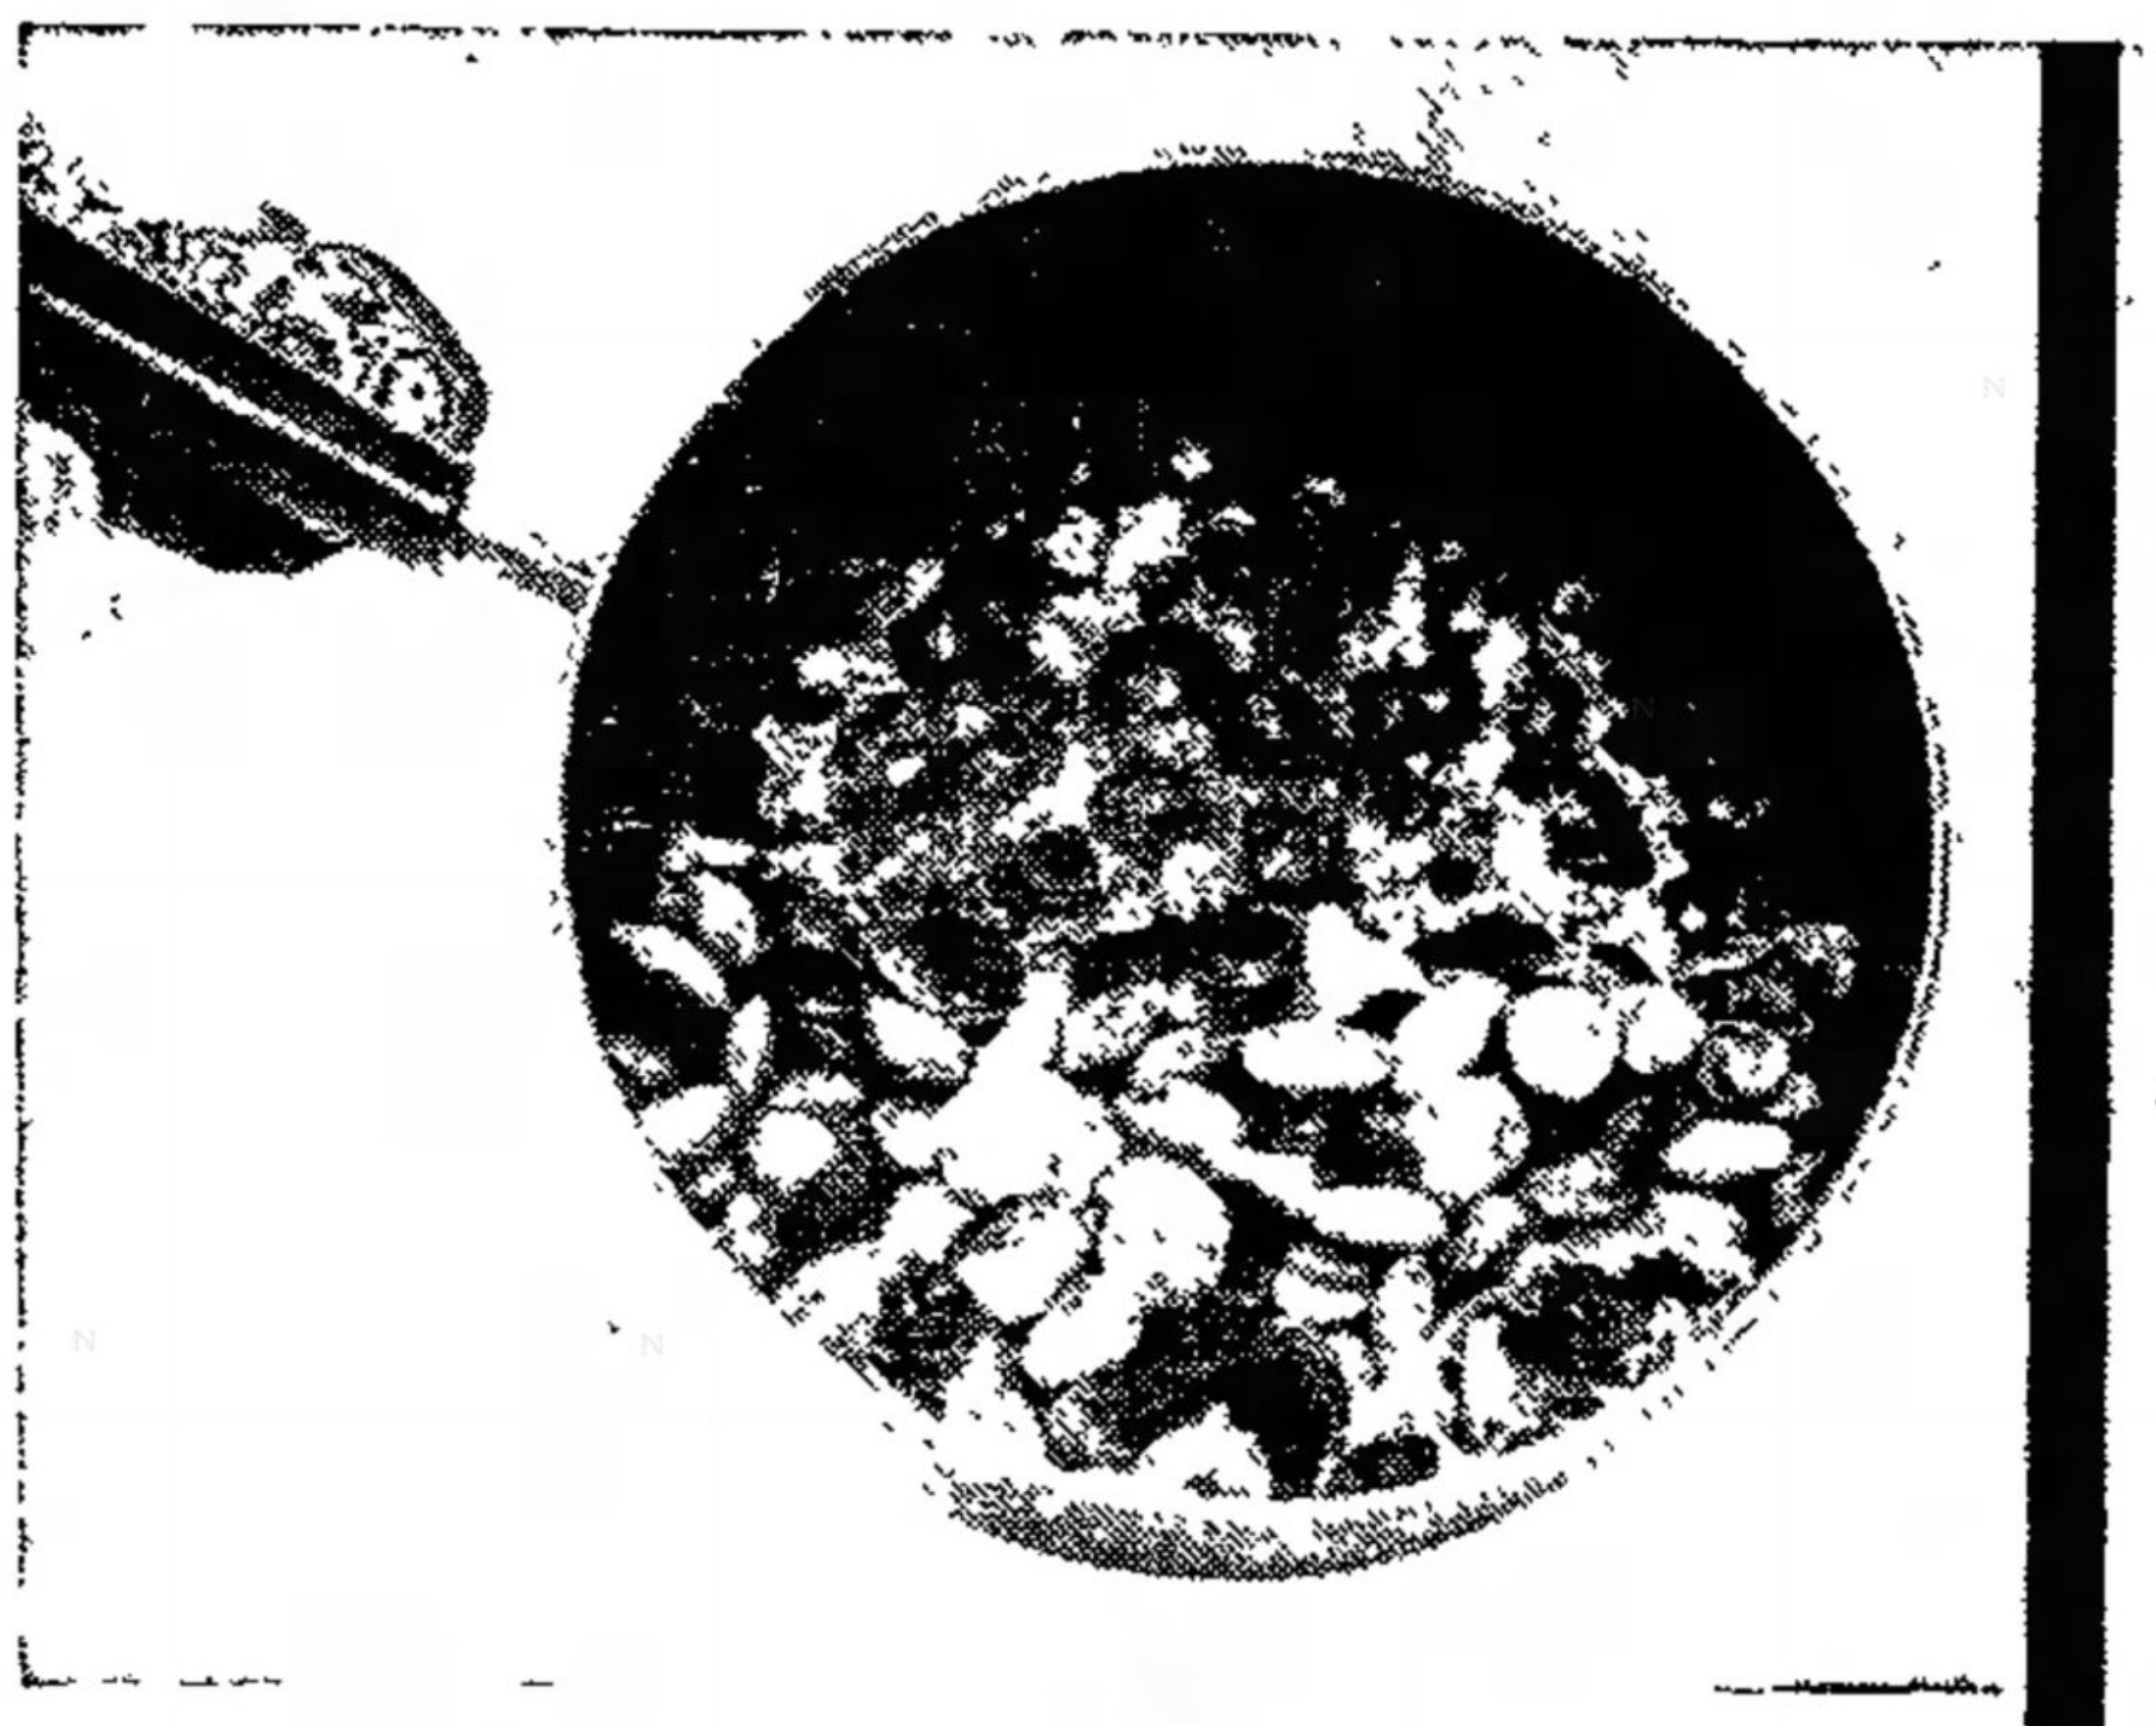
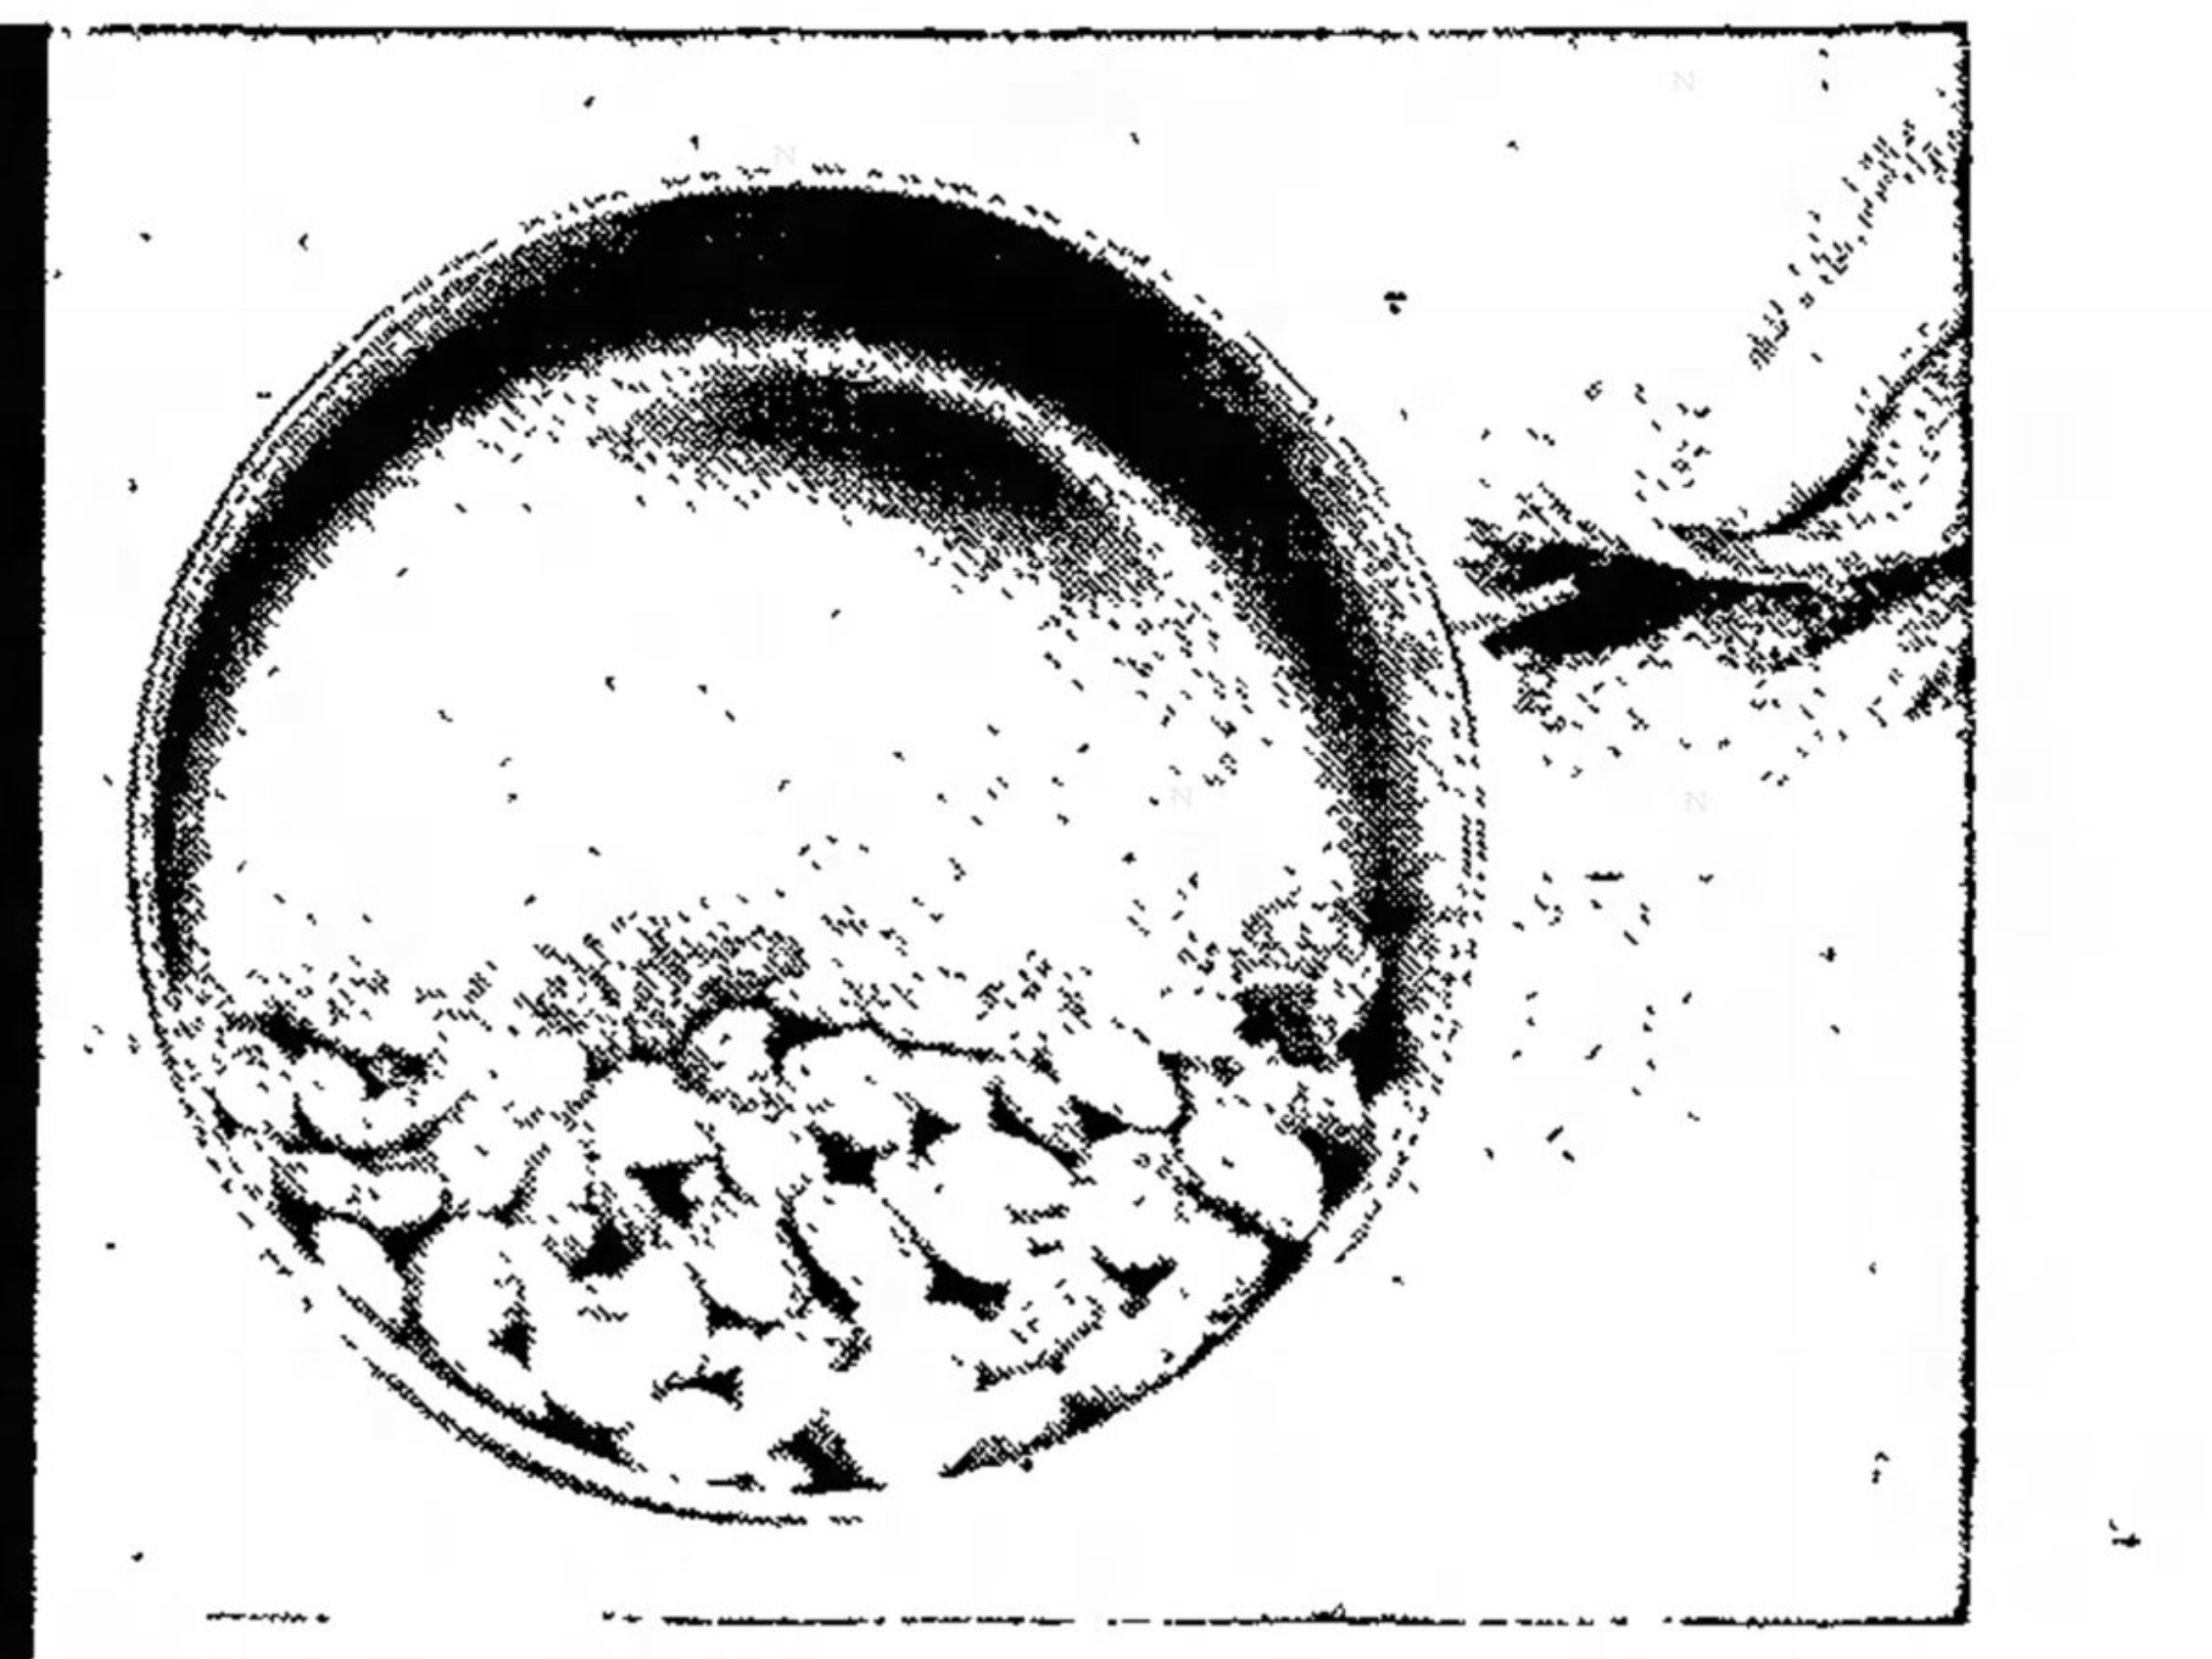
30-MINUTE TEST PROVES:
NEW GAS BURNER WITH A BRAIN
WON'T SCORCH FOOD



30 minutes on ordinary burner



30 minutes on the Gas Burner-with-a-Brain

Here's proof that foods WON'T BURN on a new Gas Burner-with-a-Brain. Even if you get busy and forget that you have vegetables cooking for 30 minutes or more—the automatic heat control keeps them from reaching scorching temperature.

What happens is this: you dial the temperature it takes to cook your vegetable. Then the automatic heat control unit takes over! It turns the flame up until the exact cooking temperature is reached. Then it turns the flame down, just as you would do, to keep the heat exactly right for the rest of the cooking period.

Just think! Vegetables won't overcook. Cream sauces won't curdle or separate. Bacon can't burn. French fries have golden, crisp crust instead of being soggy and greasy. All because the Burner-with-a-Brain has the exact temperature control you get only with Gas.

Remember . . . flame cooking is the finest cooking.

Small Loan Companies Vs Banks

(The second of three dispatches on the small loan business)

By FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UP)—Small loan companies have found that respectability rubs off.

Borrowing suddenly became more fashionable in 1928, when the First National City Bank of New York opened a personal loan department, leading the way for other banks. This year, banks will dole out $12,300,000,000 in personal loans.

The small loan companies, instead of being hurt by this competition, find themselves doing better than ever.

This year, our 10,745 small loan offices will make about 16 million loans at a volume of 3½-billion dollars. Ten years ago, it was 10 million loans at a $1,400,000,000 volume.

Even though interest rates are about double when compared to bank rates, one family in six is a small loan company customer.

Charge More Interest

Small loan companies charge more interest than banks because they have higher operating costs and take greater risks. They deal mostly with skilled or semi-skilled workers while banks lend mostly to the white collar worker.

Why do some people who can get a bank loan borrow from a small loan company instead? Here are some reasons.

—Small loan offices are open at more convenient hours and may be closer to home.

—Small loan offices are more willing to lend small amounts

—Their employes "speak the same language" and make the borrower feel more comfortable.

One psychologist recently found that, "A large majority of Americans consider banks as distant, cold, formal institutions. They long for a more personal, a warmer relationship."

Small loan companies promote the "friendly and warm" angle to the limit.

One firm, General Finance, urges radio listeners to call a local number and let good old "Bob Adams" arrange a quick loan. This firm has about 200 employes answering calls for Adams. "We picked 'Bob Adams' because it's a typical American name," said Richard Trenkmann, company vice president.

Some finance companies in the early 1940s began to realize that a get-tough policy toward delinquents was bad business and bad public relations. They repossess only in rare cases these days. The danger of repossession is at a minimum because of such cushions as credit life, health and accident insurance, unemployment insurance and pensions.

A $500 20-month loan can cost you from $104 to $161 in interest, depending on the state law the small loan company works under. The bank's charge would put the same loan cost about $71. On a $300 loan, payable over 18 months, the bank cost comes to about $38 while the small loan company would charge at least $68

Accidental Find

CAIRO (UP)— Workmen clearing the western desert of minefields dating from World War II have accidentally discovered a tomb of the Hellenic era containing ancient statues and coffins, it was reported today. The newspaper Al Missa said the workmen were digging between the famed Alamein battlefield and the village of Elihamman west of Alexandria when they found the tomb in a cavernous pit. Experts said the find was of "the highest archaeological importance."

Bomb Hunt On

WINFRITH HEATH, England (UP) —Britain's atomic energy commission began a full-scale bomb hunt on the grounds of its nuclear research station here today. The search, expected to take a month, was ordered as a precautionary move. Last month an anti-personnel bomb left from World War II was unearthed near the station and it was feared there may be more.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Michael Nyalko, who died one year ago today, November 14, 1956.

As God's golden sun showers
Dad's grave today,
Our hearts are filled with longing,
A prayer to hear him say
That he is watching o'er us
And keeping us from wrong.
And though he was taken from us
We know 'twon't be for long
Till we join him up in Heaven
Where he'll part from us no more.
And we'll see his smile so sweetly
As we did in days of yore
Take him in Thine arms, dear Lord
And ever let him be
A messenger of love
Between our hearts and thee.
Sadly missed by Wife, Daughter and Granddaughter

In loving memory of our dear sister, Genevieve Cozzens Hutchison, who died three years ago today, November 14, 1954.

We miss the many things
You did to make us glad.
Your cheery smile, your twinkling eyes
And the unique way you had,
To make us feel like smiling
When we were feeling low.
You transposed gloom to happiness
And kept us all aglow.
No, we cannot forget you,
The memories are dear,
And we think of you
As being very near.
Sadly missed by her sisters, Mildred Scott and Gertrude Moody.

Everybody Doing It

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP)— When police asked Franklin D. Radcliff why he was driving 50 miles an hour the wrong way on a one way street which had a 25 miles an hour limit, he replied: "I was just following the flow of traffic."

Many Washington Neighborhoods Are Open to Negro Families

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UP) — A massive population shift and the steady crumbling of racial barriers have opened many Washington neighborhoods to Negroes.

Residential segregation is still the rule in the capital's suburbs in Maryland and Virginia. But "white only" areas are much diminished in the District of Columbia, itself, the inner city of the Washington metropolitan area and federal territory.

Until a few years ago, most Negroes lived in the Northeast section of the city or in slum areas south of the Capitol. In the Northwest section, traditionally regarded as the most desirable residential area, Negroes were largely confined to run-down neighborhoods near the center of the city or in the old Georgetown district.

Today hundreds of blocks in Northwest Washington are occupied almost exclusively by Negroes. Negro residents equal or outnumber whites in some middle-income neighborhoods like Petworth and Brightwood, which long were covered by restrictive covenants against them.

16th Street Now Open

Latest area to be opened up to Negroes is along 16th Street, N.W. —the broad thoroughfare from the White House to suburban Silver Spring, Md.

White and Negro realtors agreed that there is now only one major segment of the Northwest section in which Negroes find it difficult, if not impossible, to buy homes. This is the area west of Rock Creek Park.

In Georgetown, the historic old community along the Potomac River where many notables live, the process has been working in reverse. White families are buying out Negroes and paying huge sums to remodel ancient and dilapidated houses that date back to the Revolutionary Era.

Three factors have contributed to the radical revision of Washington's pattern of residential segregation:

Enormous Growth

—The enormous and continuing growth of the Negro population. The 1940 census listed 188,765 "non-whites" in the district, or 29 per cent of the total population. Today the Negro population is estimated at 380,000, or about 45 per cent of the population.

—A barrier which kept them out of many neighborhoods was demolished by the Supreme Court on May 3, 1948. It ruled that restrictive covenants, forbidding sale or rental of property to Negroes and Jews, could not be enforced in any court. The court nailed down this ruling in 1953 with another decision that said violators of restrictive covenants could not be sued for damages.

—The mass migration of white families into the suburbs, begun sometime ago, was accelerated by the general lowering of racial barriers in the district, including the integration of public schools.

Readers Can Be Helped

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Ever think about reading a newspaper from front page right through to back page?

It would be quite a job. Most persons who purchase newspapers read the main news stories, some of the features (this column among them, I hope!), the ads and the comics.

But, if you wanted to read a newspaper all the way through, how long would it take? Believe it or not, a study of this has been made.

The average 40-page newspaper contains about 150,000 words. It would take the average reader some 10 hours to read every one of them. A superior reader could complete the task in about six hours. Many of us, unforunately, are not superior or even average readers. For those who are really slow readers it would take 16 hours or more.

This brings up the particular point I want to make.

While I don't expect you to sit down and read every word in this newspaper, I do think many of you could speed up your reading and comprehension.

Three out of every five Americans read at a lumbering pace, about 250 words per minute, or only a little faster than they speak. Even so, they comprehend only about three-fourths of what they read.

As you read this column, your eyes make a series of stops Just how many stops depends upon the number of words your eyes can seize at each fixation.

If you're a slow reader (150 words or less per minute) your eyes stop at almost every word and you will tire quickly. A faster reader takes in several words at each brief pause

Just about all of us could speed up our reading with the help of an eyesight specialist In some instances, a visual defect might be one of the causes for slow reading ability.

If you have any reading difficulty, better see an eye specialist

In Hollywood—

Caldwell Novel to Be Filmed

(Vernon Scott is on vacation. Today's column is written by Director Anthony Mann who currently is directing the most controversial picture yet made in movietown — "God's Little Acre.")

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UP) — The best thing about "The Square Root of Wonderful" by Carson McCullers is the title, which well may be the most attractive of the season.

The play is a disappointment. Mrs. McCullers, notable for her perceptive and off-beat writing and character drawing, has fallen into a pattern here that, save for a few sexy speeches, is about the same as that used for the radio and TV serial stories.

The depth that one expects to find in her work does not exist. The writing includes some bright lines now and then, but they are linked largely to the old one-track joke about the faded southern belle, and this begins to pall after a time.

The title refers to love. This particular love problem belongs to a divorcee who is vivacious and a little child-like. Her husband was a promising writer of the southern school who turned out a successful first novel a dozen or so years ago, then became a neurotic drunkard.

Jean Dixon Scores

Just as she finds a nice, considerate architect, the husband comes back into her life and exercises his anamalistic hold on her. The solution is the death of the husband in an automobile accident. The woman prepares for happiness with the new man.

Anne Baxter, who hasn't played on the stage since she was a teenager, has come back from Hollywood to give a warm and understanding performance as the divorcee. She is thoroughly appealing

There are good character portrayals by Jean Dixon as the southern aristocratic mother type and by Martine Bartlett as her wallflower spinster daughter. William Smithers plays the husband with more violence than finesse, and Philip Abbott has an empty role as the architect. Kevin Coughlin is good as a 13-year-old son of the couple.

George Keathley's direction is competent enough. Jo Mielziner designed the attractive country home set. Saint Subber and Figaro, Inc., produced the play.

World of TV—

June Allyson Will Debut This Sunday

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — A TV debut is something like an unsolicited kiss. If it's inevitable, it's better to relax and enjoy it.

June Allyson, who was scheduled to make her TV bow last month, but never quite made it, is ticketed for her second debut this Sunday. Along with a carload of other performers. Miss Allyson will romp on 'The General Motors 50th "Anniversary Show," a two-hour NBC-TV venture.

June Allyson

The prospect fills Miss Allyson with dread

"I'm terrified, really terrified," she said in her satin-croak.

She smiled a terrified - type smile "TV really terrifies me and live TV terrifies me especially.

"I suppose the movies have spoiled so many of us. If you're doing a movie and make a mistake, why, you just do it over again But TV One chance and that's it. That's why it's so frightening"

Fifteen Years In Movies

Miss Allyson, an actress of small but structurally sound construction, sports 15 years worth of Hollywood hash stripes. Her pictures include "The Glenn Miller Story," "The Shrike" and the current "My Man Godfrey."

Earlier this season, NBC - TV listed her in the cast of a Standard Oil of New Jersey spectacular, a bomb that went off on Oct 13, but Miss Allyson never showed NBC-TV attributed it to "illness" at the time

Miss Allyson confessed she had simply withdrawn. "I just didn't like the material," she said "They had given me some song and dance stuff to do and I just knew it wouldn't come off.

"I like the material I'm going to do this Sunday—about six minutes from 'Our Town' Aside from that I figure it's time I got my feet wet—I can't put it off forever And I figure I might as well get them real wet on a live TV show

"It's such a big show They've got everybody in it And I've got such a small part I figure I can learn something and at the same time not shoulder too much responsibility As I said before. I'm terrified of this medium"

The Hollywood fantasy factories molded Miss Allyson's public image along "cuddly cute" lines, but at the age of 33, she admitted she had just about had it with that bit

"Cuddly cute? That's an awful way to be thought of." She said it with a shudder. "But yes, it's true. And I have been trying to get away from that kind of role. I'm going to do a picture after this, 'And Ride A Tiger,' that will put me in a more mature role. I'll play a widow.

"Then there were a couple of pictures, 'The Shrike' and 'Interlude,' in which I think I got away from cute types. And there's this TV show.

"After all, I am grown up. And it's kind of sad in a way that anyone might still think of me as the girl in pigtails You see — I don't wear pigtails anymore," she said And she grabbed a fistful of her short blonde hair and looked terrified again.
